Two Kinds of Laws.
From the Track to the Street.
N. Y.'s Road in the Air.
An Octopus Fight.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

MR. HOOVER, it is said, will take up prohibition in his own way, not controlled by wets or drys. That's the right plan. He was elected President, not the wets or drys.

IT IS added that Mr. Hoover has investigated "control in other countries."

Other countries legislate on the drink question, making laws to suit the people rather than trying to remake the people to suit a law.

AMONG intelligent nations of Europe it is made difficult and costly to get whisky and the other alcoholic poisons, comparatively easy and inexpensive to get beer and wine, the less harmful stimulants that men have drunk temperately for centuries.

THE "tipster" moves from the race track to Wall Street. You can now buy tips on what stocks will do, based on mysterious information.

THESE tips do not come from the "feed box." But tipsters assure you they get information from the man that waits on C. E. Mitchell, president of the National City Bank, in his private dining room in the bank building, or from the man that waits on Otto H. Kahn or Mortimer Schiff, of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., in their private dining rooms.

Fools actually buy the tips.

NEW YORK CITY, after much discussion, has appropriated the money to build an elevated highway down the west side of the city, to cost more than $18,000,000. It will remove thousands of cars morning and evening from congested districts. That step other cities eventually must take while waiting to double-deck their streets, which also must come. The old-fashioned city won't do.

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER, Jr., has begun a fight to put Col. Robert W. Stewart out of Standard Oil Company of Indiana.

Mr. Rockefeller doesn't approve Mr. Stewart's action in connection with a quickly improvised Canadian Oil Company, and asks stockholders for their proxies.

THIS fight, inside one of the little Standard Oil octopuses, will be interesting. It is the first fight in which the Rockefeller family has appeared in some time. They have had many in the past, and usually won them.

DR. E. L. RICHARDS, of Johns Hopkins, says "40 per cent of all persons that visit doctors at hospitals have nothing wrong with them."

Their trouble is in their imagination.

MIND controls the body, and the mind is imagination. The power of various "faith cures" that relieve so many "sick" is due to the fact that so many of the "sick" are not really sick at all.

A RELIGION with sufficient power to control their imaginations persuades them that they are not sick, and so they are well.

But no faith cure will cure you if there is anything really the matter with you.

It won't cure a broken leg, an aching tooth or a cancer, more's the pity.

MR. LUCEY, the old Northampton cobbler who knew President Coolidge when a boy, is supposed to have given little Calvin this advice: "Keep your shoes laced tight, and never let your tongue wag."

President Coolidge took that good advice about the tongue. There is no information as to the advice concerning shoes.

IT IS harmful to lace children's shoes too tight. Lacing tightly around the ankles, pressing on blood vessels, impeding the flow of blood, gives the heart more work to do. Cobbler Lucey was only half right.

SOME Jugo-Slavs are annoyed that their King Alexander should declare himself an absolute monarch, promising to kill anybody that questions his autocracy.

Very intelligently, the king promises death or 20 years in jail to any newspaper writer offering serious objections to his plan. Absolute monarchs and a free press don't go well together.

EXCITEMENT following the war and all the talk about "self determination" created separate kingdoms that might more wisely have been left in control of others.

Nations fit to survive do survive, without outside help.

THOSE governed by the self-announced autocrat, Alexander, include Dalmatians, Serbians, Croatians, Slovenes, Bosnians, Montenegrins, Herzegovinians, and others. To manufacture a homogeneous working government machine out of that combination is not easy, even with a hangman and autocracy to help.

THE Fisher Brothers, who began building automobile bodies in a small way, not long ago, now run many things and have been invited to form a combine to control virtually all the world's production of whisky.

THE idea started in Canada. A combination of British and Canadian concerns, would doubtless make some gentlemen very rich. It would not, however, affect the whisky business of the United States, its tens of thousands of secret stills, tens of thousands of "speakeasies," at least 26,000 of them in New York City alone. They make their own, and heaven help the drinkers of it.

COLD WAVE COMES OUT OF WEST

The second cold wave in four days will sweep in from the Northwest tonight, the weather bureau predicted today.

Accompanied by cloudy skies and probably light snow, the mercury will begin falling late today, Forecaster W. S. Brotzman said. The lowest temperature here tonight will be about 20 degrees, he predicted, but tomorrow the peak of the wave will drop the mercury to 10 degrees.

"The cold spell will be of short duration," said Brotzman. "Warmer weather is immediately back of the frigid wave."

Snowfall will be hardly more than a trace, the forecaster said. Fields and lawns are bare and much damage will be suffered by winter crops and shrubs by alternate freezing and thawing, he asserted. The only snow of consequence this season fell in November, accoroding to the records.

The low mark for the winter season was recorded Tuesday when 2 degrees above zero was registered at the weather bureau.

News Dealers for Sun-Telegraph Exclusively

A large group of news dealers met in the Seventh Avenue Hotel last night and voted to discontinue handling the Pittsburgh Press. John R. Noble, president of the body, said the Press had demanded that the dealers establish the so-called "junior system," under which they would be required to employ boys who would deliver no other paper but the Press. This plan, Noble said, was not acceptable.

Members of the group sent a circular letter to their customers today in which they said:

"We take this opportunity to advise you that from this date we will no longer represent the Pittsburgh Press; therefore, the same will not be delivered to your home by us.

"Our action in discontinuing our service with the Pittsburgh Press was due to certain demands made by the Pittsburgh Press in methods they desire us to put in operation. We cannot, in justice to all newspapers that we represent, continue to represent the Press.

"Therefore, in the evening and Sunday we will only represent the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph and in the morning the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette."

The territory affected by the decision was said to include Allegheny, Beaver, Washington, Westmoreland and Fayette counties and part of Armstrong county.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—(INS.)—Authur A. Ford, New York's Spiritualist pastor who has figured in the "Houdini message from the beyond," broke into print again today with the awarding of a $1,000 slander verdict to Miss Alma Nelson, his former secretary. Miss Nelson had sued Anna Abbott Gilbert, charging that the defendant slandered her to such an extent she was forced to resign as Ford's secretary.

Weds Trees

MRS. EDITH LEHM TREES

JOSEPH CLIFTON TREES

J. C. TREES WEDS SECRETARY

Joseph Clifton Trees, multimillionaire oil operator, has married Miss Edith Lehm, of Dormont, his secretary, and they are on an extended South American honeymoon, it was revealed here today. Trees, whose first wife died about a year ago, is 59. The bride is 35.

Careful plans apparently had been made to keep secret the wedding, which was solemnized Wednesday in Washington, D. C., by an Atlantic City pastor.

At the Mayflower Hotel in Washington, Mr. Trees confirmed the report of his second matrimonial venture, but indicated a reluctance to discuss it.

BRIDE PITTSBURGHER

The bride is a native Pittsburgher. She was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Louis Lehm who came to the United States from Germany. The mother died about seven years ago and since that time father and daughter made their home in Dormont until the father's death about a year ago.

Miss Lehm had been in Mr. Trees' employ as private secretary for about 10 years.

Trees recently began major embellishments of his country estate, an indication, it is said, that he intended using it as his main residence.

As part of this program a 60-foot elm tree was moved 10 miles from the grounds of the Thornhill County School for Boys to the Trees estate to round out a landscape group. The task of moving the tree was one of the biggest of its

DEATH PLOT 'TRIANGLE' BARED

DETROIT, Jan. 11.—(INS.)—Mrs. Grace M. Wood's belief that Ralph A. Wood, 33, wealthy real estate operator, intended to remarry his first wife will be one of several motives advanced by the state in its prosecution of the middle-aged second wife who stands charged with a conspiracy to murder him, it was reported today.

One of the alleged conspirators, Ambrose Haggerty, 25-year-old gunman, was shot to death by Wood and detectives who had been told of a plot by Cecil Holt, 25, an accountant.

WIFE BLAMED IN PLOT

Holt said Mrs. Wood had hired him and two other men to dispose of Ralph, 15 years her junior.

A score of Detroit, Wyandotte and state officers surprised the gunmen when they tried to murder him in his little real estate office at Wyandotte, fashionable Detroit suburb.

The first Mrs. Wood, Blanche, 30, and strikingly pretty, lives in Grand Ledge, Mich., with her two children. She told authorities that Wood intended to remarry her just

BOY GUILTY IN WITCH KILLING

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN,
International News Service.

YORK, Pa., Jan. 11.—John Curry, a ruddy-cheeked, black-haired boy of 14, today was found guilty of murder in the first degree for his part in the slaying of Nelson D. Rehmeyer, aged "powwow doctor." He was sentenced by the jury to life imprisonment.

This was the same verdict that another jury gave in the case of John Blymyer, co-defendant, who claimed Rehmeyer "bewitched" Curry. Blymyer and Wilbert Hess. Hess now is on trial.

The Curry jury, which had retired at 10:45 a. m., returned its verdict at 1:44 p. m. this afternoon when court reconvened. They had reached the verdict at 12:35 p. m. during a recess.

CURRY IS CALM

The jury filed in solemnly at 1:42 p. m. Young Curry, shackled to a deputy sheriff, had just been brought into the courtroom.

The courtroom was jammed. Hundreds milled about in the corridors.

The boyish, good-looking Curry stood up. He wore a blue serge suit without a vest. He looked directly at the jurors without batting an eyelash.

"We find the defendant, John Curry, guilty of murder in the first degree and we fix his punishment at life imprisonment," the jury foreman said.

Curry's face was set. He showed no emotion.

But, from the fourth row of spectators came subdued sobbing. There sat the boy's mother, Mrs. Anna Curry McLane, crying.

The prisoner was led from the courtroom. On the way out he said:

"I didn't think I'd get that."

Curry never feared he would be sent to the electric chair, one of the defense lawyers revealed. He quoted Curry as having said in city jail:

WOULD BITE WIRES

"I'll never burn in the electric chair. I'll bite the wires if they ever put me in it."

Immediately after Curry was taken to the York County jail, the trial of Wilbert Hess, the third co-defendant, was resumed. At 2 p. m. seven jurors had been selected.

Counsel for Blymyer made a motion for a new trial on the ground that the "verdict was against the weight of evidence."

Judge Ray P. Sherwood took the motion under advisement.

DECEPTION ISLAND, Antarctica, Jan. 10.—(Via Whaler Hektoria and KUP, San Francisco Examiner Wireless Station.)—Our present exploration trip is ended.

Tomorrow we will look for a safe place to store our machines and equipment and investigate the possibilities of a speedy return to civilization.

SOUGHT NEW BASE

This is the decision we have reached following another flight over the great white South today. We left Deception today in sunshine and under most favorable conditions, with Joe Crossan piloting the Lockheed plane "Los Angeles," which is now on pontoons.

We flew about 250 miles and looked over some of the country recently discovered. We tried to locate a more southerly base accessible by boat, and where we will likely have more favorable conditions than at Deception.

FLY BELOW PEAKS

We flew in the early part of the flight at an altitude of 2,000 feet below the level of the mountain peaks and took some remarkable still and motion pictures. Further

ENGINES FAIL; SHIP DOWN IN PENNA.

MIDDLETOWN, Pa., Jan. 11.—(AP.)—Five persons were killed and three were injured when a big passenger airplane crashed at Royalton, near the Army air depot here, today.

CRASHES THROUGH TREES

The plane struck in a garden patch after the engines apparently had gone dead. It crashed through a group of trees, ripping off branches, and landed on its right wing.

Royalton residents extricated the dead and injured from the wreckage and Army flying officers at Umstead Field were notified. An Army truck was dispatched to the scene.

10 IN PLANE

The ticket agent of the Pennsylvania Railroad at Middletown said he saw the plane leave the field at Middletown, waver in its flight, and finally fall. He rushed to the scene and helped extricate four bodies from the wreckage. Another man was dying, he said.

There were eight persons in the plane when it fell.

PILOT ALIVE

The ship was piloted by Lieut. Robert Angel, of Bolling Field, Virginia, who was taken from the wreckage alive. An earlier report that Capt. H. A. Dinger was the pilot was declared untrue at Umstead Field. Dinger flew the ship from Bolling Field to Middletown, and there turned it over to Angel.

CLARK PROBING LOTTERY QUIZ COLLAPSE

Public Safety Director Clark today began a personal inquiry into the alleged lottery operations of Carmen Logiodice, 6508 Ladson street, and the mysterious failure of arresting officers and witnesses to appear against Logiodice in Morals Court this morning and on one other occasion.

Clark has called upon Inspector Bernard Curley, of Frankstown Avenue Police Station, to furnish him with a complete report as to why the arresting officers and witnesses were not at the hearing.

Unless a satisfactory explanation is forthcoming, Clark also said today that he would suspend the policemen.

Logiodice, said to be a prominent politician in the East Liberty district, was first arrested October 25, last, on a charge of operating a lottery. He gave bond for a hearing. The alleged lottery was known as the Clearing House pool. Brandon issued a warrant for Logiodice's arrest. When the day of the hearing arrived no witnesses were present.

Last Sunday Mrs. Catherine Conway, of Emerson and Ravenna streets, appeared in Morals Court and testified that her husband, Charles, was employed by Logiodice to run an adding machine at the office of the alleged lottery, Larimer avenue and Shetland street. Conway is said to have testified that he received $3 a day and that the receipts from the pool never averaged less than $4,000 a day. Brandon issued another warrant for Logiodice's arrest on a charge of conducting a lottery. Logiodice again posted bond for his appearance at the hearing, but again no witnesses appeared.

LOSES ALL OF FAMILY

Trees' rise from a laborer's job in the oil fields of Western Pennsylvania to one of the dominant figures in the international oil industry, has been colorful, but his private life during that time was saddened by the death of his entire family.

A son was killed about 20 years ago in an automobile accident. Another son crashed to death in an airplane at a Texas training camp during the World War. A long illness preceded Mrs. Trees' death.

Trees, who has one of the most pretentious of the large estates on North Highland avenue, lately has developed one of the biggest fruit ranches in the state around his palatial country home just off Babcock boulevard and adjoining the estate of County Commissioner E. V. Babcock.

IN BIG OIL DEAL

Only recently it was revealed that Trees was the figure behind one of the biggest oilfield development schemes ever undertaken—a plan to develop millions of acres of South American territory.

Trees, donor of Trees gymnasium to the University of Pittsburgh, was a football star at the university while studying engineering.

Trees' first wife was Mrs. Claudine Virginia Willison Trees, who he married in 1894. His business connections are many. Among them he is president of the J. C. Trees Oil Company, the Arkansas Fuel Oil Company, and the International Petroleum Company; he is vice president of the Benedum-Trees Oil Company, a trustee of National Park Seminary, Washington, D. Pfarr, $10-a-Year Fire Marshal, "Homeless"

Fire Marshal Thomas Pfarr was all packed up today in his office and living quarters in the Old South School, Ross and Grant streets, and highly uncertain where to go.

County officials notified him yesterday that he must move, since the Old South School is to be razed within a week. But they didn't tell him where to go, for the county, which pays the fire marshal $10 a year, does not provide him with offices.

KOPP WITNESS BEFORE RUM INQUIRY

Richard M. Kopp, a member of the County Board of Viewers, former assemblyman and treasurer of old Allegheny, testified today before the federal grand jury in the government's move to reindict defendants in the North Side liquor conspiracy case. He shared the distinction with Arnold Thornburg, former Allegheny High School athlete.

Kopp is believed to have been called in connection with the raid by prohibition agents on the Union Fishing Club, 812 East North Diamond street, Tuesday. William H. Robertson, city assessor and former councilman, was among those arrested in the raid.

Bank deposit slips and records of the club were to be examined by the inquisitors.

Thornburg, who was indicted by the previous grand jury and was one of the government star witnesses at the trial which resulted in acquittal of the defendants by order of the court. Thornburg was before the jury for half an hour.

In an effort to bring the session to a close tomorrow, the grand jury met last night after examining 23 witnesses yesterday. Among those witnesses were several secret agents of the Internal Revenue Bureau and officials of Pittsburgh banks. The trip of the jurors to the government storage house in Allen avenue to view seized stills, which had been requested by the jurors, was called off on account of the press of other business.

"In the event my mother, Mrs. Lou J. Adams, shall be living at the time of my death, I give and bequeath to my trustee hereinafter named such sum as in the judgment of my executor hereinafter named, will yield a sum of six thousand dollars ($6,000) a year.

"Upon her death my said trustee shall in the event my daughter, Maxine Texas Rickard, be then living, transfer, convey and pay over the principal and corpus of said trust fund for the benefit of my daughter."

The will also leaves a trust fund to bring $2,400 a year for his mother-in-law, Mrs. Flora Haig. This fund also goes to his daughter in the event of Mrs. Haig's death.

Edith May Schultz is bequeathed $25,000 in trust. When she reaches the age of 21 or becomes married the trust fund is to be paid over to her. The will makes no mention of who this beneficiary is.

Ground Sinking By Rotating Movements

TRIANGLE IS BARED

as soon as he obtained a divorce from his second wife in Wayne County Circuit Court.

FIRST 'TRIANGLE' BARED

The first Mrs. Wood said Grace Wood became infatuated with Wood six years ago and that she paid her (Blanche) "a lot of money" to divorce him when a suit was threatened.

"She knew she was going to lose him," Blanche said today.

She expressed sympathy for her divorced husband and the hope that he would not be subjected to adverse publicity.

Wood, officers said, was visiting his first wife during the two preceding Wednesday's shooting in Wyandotte. He also visited at Grand Ledge during the Christmas holidays, they said.

Meantime, the imprisoned wife was in the Women's Detention Home awaiting arraignment on warrants which are expected to charge her with conspiracy to assault and murder.

She awaits the ordeal apparently with the utmost calm. She said her attorney today will prepare a statement containing "alarming revelations."

Mrs. Wood denies the alleged plot and the accusations of the other asserted conspirators that they were hired by her.

COUNCIL PLANS ITS BATTLE ON SMOKE TODAY

Council today will discuss plans for eliminating the smoke nuisance with Harry B. Meller, chief of the city's smoke regulation bureau.

Considerable attention will be given to a proposal by Robert Garland authorizing the employment of 10 technical men as temporary inspectors to assist in abating the objectionable smoke.

They will be recruited from engineering students at University of Pittsburgh and Carnegie Tech specializing in studies of coal as fuel.

The additional inspectors would be exempt from civil service rules and would work four a day for three months at 75 cents an hour.

Today's meeting is expected to attract representatives of civic and commercial organizations who have been agitating action on plans to eliminate the smoke evil.

DENNY TO HEAD BOY SCOUTS

Harmar D. Denny, Jr., was named president of the Allegheny County Council, Boy Scouts of America, at the annual scout dinner last night in Kaufmann's. Much enthusiasm was shown among the 500 scout leaders present and plans for closer relationships between the executive board and the troops were discussed.

Dr. Harry C. McKeown, of the University of Pittsburgh, was the principal speaker. Others who gave talks were John L. Taylor, assistant scout executive, and John M. Phillips and F. F. Schauer, commissioners. Several scouts sang and a play, "Pa Pitt's Son," was presented in tribute to the late Lawrence E. Sands, scout leader. Other officers elected with Denny were H. H. Patterson, Irwin D. Wolf and F. J. Chesterman, vice presidents; Edwin C. May, treasurer, and Shirley P. Austin, assistant treasurer.

STATE BOOSTS BARTLETT FOR CABINET JOB

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS,
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—Pennsylvania, through its representatives in Congress, today had joined ranks with New Hampshire in urging the appointment of First Assistant Postmaster General John H. Bartlett to a cabinet place in the new Hoover administration.

Calling at Hoover headquarters at the Mayflower Hotel here, Representative Clyde Kelly, of Braddock, and Representative I. H. Doutrich, of Harrisburg, told the President-elect that the selection of Mr. Bartlett as postmaster general would be entirely satisfactory to the Keystone state.

URGED BY MOSES

The Pennsylvania Congressman spent more than a half hour with Mr. Hoover in urging the qualifications of Mr. Bartlett. Recommendations for his appointment had previously been left with the President-elect by Senator George Moses, of New Hampshire, native state of the first assistant postmaster general.

Mr. Bartlett is a former governor of New Hampshire. He came to Washington at the beginning of the Harding administration.

TALK AIR MAIL

Representative Kelly also discussed with Mr. Hoover plans for extending the United States air mail system to South America. He said that the President-elect was found deeply interested in the subject and indicated a willingness to co-operate with any legislative plan that might be put forward.

Kelly is the father of the present air mail system, having sponsored the first law in Congress on the subject. Also he has put through the various measures adopted for its promotion since the original act.

THEFT SUSPECT ARRESTED

Suspected of being the prowler who has entered more than a score of homes and terrorized the Squirrel Hill district within the last month, Samuel Harris, 30, a Negro of 1413 Clark street, was arrested in the Hill district early today.

Harris was held for further investigation, without bail, by Magistrate John Orie in Central Police Court.

Residents of Squirrel Hill whose homes were entered will be asked to attempt to identify the man. In many cases the Squirrel Hill robber was seen plainly by his victims.

Lieut. Edward O'Rourke and Detectives Harry Foster and William Egan arrested Harris near his home. They say Harris was released from the penitentiary November 21, after serving a term for burglary.

PROFESSOR, HOME FROM JUNGLE, BRINGS DEADLIEST POISON

HERMOINE KETTNER EXHIBITS "LOST WORLD" NATIVE BLOWGUN

SCIENTIST BACK FROM 'LOST WORLD'

A Pittsburgh scientist who with one bush-whacker penetrated hundreds of miles of jungles and reached the "Lost World" of Conan Doyle's imagination, is back at his desk, studying beetles and lecturing University of Pittsburgh students.

Behind Dr. S. H. Williams, the explorer, are stirring adventures, battles with South American wilds, men and animals and bush and disease.

With him today—the professor of zoology at Pitt—are numerous specimens of insects, especially beetles. Many of them are rare, all of them valuable to science. The thrilling moment to Dr. Williams, strange to say, was not when he stood at the base of Mt. Roraima, British Guiana, and the plateau called "The Lost World." The great moment, strangely, was not when he viewed for the first time Kareteur Falls, with its perpendicular drop of 800 feet—nearly five times that of Niagara.

NEW BEETLE FOUND

What brought to the Pittsburgh scientist the great success of his one-man expedition was the capture of a new beetle—one hitherto undescribed in scientific annals, but one which is to go down through history as the Williams Beetle.

The Pitt professor found others very rare. He also brought back a dolphin, whose skeleton he sent to Smithsonian institute and whose skin is being mounted for display in Carnegie Museum. It is the second of its kind ever found. One has been in Stuttgart, Germany, since 1854.

Most startling of all the material he brought back to Pittsburgh, however, is a small pot of carrere—the deadly poison that the Indians of the "Lost World" region apply to their darts, and shoot through their long blow-guns. A cupful, the amount Dr. Williams brought, is almost enough to poison all of Pittsburgh.

Once the dart penetrates, it means death.

DARTS ON DISPLAY

A score or more of darts, with the carrere, are on exhibit now at the Carnegie Museum.

Dr. Williams has just returned to Pittsburgh. He spent a year in Germany following his South American explorations, collecting his scientific data, and came to Pitt to resume his lectures in zoology.

Just recently several scientific and one semi-scientific books were published by him. The latter, "The Mammals of Pennsylvania," which, dedicated to Remi H. Santens, of Carnegie Museum, describes for young people and students the animals of this state. The illustrations are taken from groups in the museum designed by Mr. Santens.

GIRLS ACCUSE 4 YOUTHS

Accused attempting to attack two young women who had been riding in an automobile with them, four young men are held in the county jail pending hearings tomorrow before Justice of the Peace Ira Edmundson of Mt. Lebanon. The girls are Susanna Kahth, 17, of 322 Jane street, Carnegie, and Agnes Terentf, of 702 Washington street, Heidelberg.

The girls were treated for cuts and bruises at the South Side Hospital where they were taken after being found in the automobile by police. Motorcycle Patrolman Robert Hasley of Mt. Lebanon says he found the girls struggling with the four youths in the automobile, which was parked in Washington road, Beverly heights.

The young men are George Morgan, Fifth avenue; Tony Mangini, Van Braam street; Louis Farinn, Logan street, and Patrick Pardeome, Pasture street. Farinn and Pardeome escaped when police interrupted the battle, but were arrested later. According to police the six attended a wedding party in Carnegie and afterward went for a ride.

VEILED THREAT IN HORST CASE RAISES FEAR

By WILLIAM PFARR,
Staff Correspondent.

ORRVILLE, O., Jan. 11.—Doubt was expressed today that 4-year-old Melvin Horst, who disappeared 15 days ago, would be returned to his parents alive.

Special Prosecutor Walter Mougey, who had been confident that Melvin would be found unharmed, admitted that the investigation had failed to establish the boy's safety.

Mougey and Detective Ora Slater today continued to hammer away at the defense of Bascom McHenry, one of the five indicted on charges of child-stealing.

During this grilling McHenry, according to Mougey, shouted:

"You'll never find that boy alive if you try to pin this on me."

MCHENRY IDENTIFIED

McHenry was identified by Fred Thomas, of Alton, O., as the driver of a green auto which passed through West Jefferson, O., carrying a small boy the night after Melvin disappeared.

McHenry denied the identification.

In the face of McHenry's denial, Slater said he was checking the suspect's report of his own activities during that period.

McHenry, his wife, Dorothy Arnold McHenry; her father, Elias Arnold, and two brothers, Arthur and William, are to be arraigned today to plead in the indictments returned against them Wednesday.

The prosecutors, pointing out that Elias Arnold had been arrested several times on liquor charges by Melvin's uncle, the town marshal, contend that the Arnolds sought revenge in kidnaping the boy.

Pitts, the woman's half blind 70-year-old husband, said he was attracted to his wife's bedroom by sounds of a crackling fire followed by her screams. He said he found her surrounded by flaming rubbish, her night garments ablaze. Pitts was burned about the arms as he tried to save her.

FLU VACCINE HELD LIKELY BY DR. MAITS

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS,
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—After attending the initial conference called by Surgeon General Hugh S. Cumming on the national influenza outbreak, the prediction was made here today by Dr. Charles B. Maits, public health director of Pittsburgh, that medical science in the early future will discover some more effective method for the prevention and cure of the disease.

Dr. Maits is attending the conference in company with Dr. Philip E. Marks, head of the Bureau of Infectious diseases of Pittsburgh. Both city officials expressed gratification today over the progress made by the scientific gathering and were confident much good will result.

SEES VACCINE PROBABLE

"It is only a matter of time," said Dr. Maits, "before the medical profession will arrive at a proper analysis of the disease and soon we should discover some vaccine to act as a preventative just as we now have for typhoid."

The purpose of the present conference, being held under the auspices of the United States Public Health Service, is to assemble all available data on the characteristics of the flu epidemic, he explained. Then government experts hope to develop preventative measures which will serve until the germ can be brought definitely under control.

Dr. Marks reported that the height of the outbreak in Pittsburgh, resulting in a large number of deaths from pneumonia, was reached just before Christmas. Since then a general decline has been noted.

CONSIDER SMOKE CONDITIONS

One phase of the discussion to be extended informally today concerns the effect of smoky conditions in the inducement of influenza and pneumonia. The Pittsburgh officials intend to compare notes with medical representatives of other sections in an effort to determine how much of the epidemic might be laid to smoke.

Dr. Marks pointed out that the subject has not been studied thoroughly heretofore and it is hoped to learn whether the traditional heavy atmosphere of Pittsburgh is an asset or a liability in respiratory infections.

POLAR THAWS STOPPED WILKINS

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—According to the dispatch from Deception Island, Antarctic, Capt. Sir Herbert Wilkins has completed the first phase of the Hearst-Wilkins expedition's work in the Antarctic. His latest 500-mile flight was made in the hope of finding a suitable and more southerly base which would enable him to continue his explorations further south throughout the present season.

The only alternative hope of reaching Ross Sea this season lay in the ability to take off on skis with a load of gasoline sufficient to drive a plane 1,800 miles. Owing to the unseasonably warm weather at Deception Island and Graham Land, which has softened the snow six weeks before it was expected to do so, this was obviously impossible.

But even if the snow and ice had been normal the very ill success as to the terrain of Graham Land made by Capt. Wilkins themselves precluded the possibility of such flight without unreasonable risk. It remained only for Capt. Wilkins to return and make a new start from a new base.

The expedition has had two major objectives.

First — Exploration of Graham Land and the western coast of Weddell Sea by airplane.

Second—A flight from Graham Land to Ross Sea and further exploration from a base established there.

In flights from Deception Island over Graham Land Sir Hubert and his associates have accomplished the first objective and thereby solved the greatest problem that has confronted scientists and geographers in the Antarctic.

The railroad passes through the Marquis farm.

WILKINS SOLVED ANTARCTIC

By DR. ISAIAH BOWMAN,
Director of the American Geographical Society

Copyright, 1929, by New York American and Universal Service, in U. S., Canada, Great Britain, France. Reproduction prohibited. Sale or use of this article elsewhere forbidden.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—By his second successful flight Capt. Sir Hubert Wilkins, commander of the Wilkins-Hearst Antarctic expedition, has brought to a start from the extraordinary results of his three months' work.

By careful planning, and with the help of the Norwegian whaler, he was able to get his whole equipment within range of its first great objective, the exploration of Graham Land and the determination of the position of the Antarctic continent beyond the unexplored western border of Weddell Sea.

Wilkins' and plane of the first flight, with equipment tested in trial flights, Wilkins at last achieved a whole season's work in a 1,200-mile flight under ideal weather conditions. The flight was done in the hours on December 21.

Solved Mystery

Upon this flight he solved one of the greatest problems that has been puzzling scientists as to the Antarctic. He established for the first time that Graham Land is not a part of the Antarctic continent, as most geographers believed and as all maps have represented it to be, but rather a succession of islands that bar the way to that continent.

Wilkins has now shifted the center of interest nearly 700 miles farther south. The mystery of Weddell Sea is pushed much farther into the distance. Wilkins description of its coast line is that of a low shelf bordering a smooth snow slope—a roughly-penciled line fading into the distance, the meeting place of this great blight and the true border of the Antarctic continent.

Wilkins' results are even more striking, from the standpoint of physical geography, than those of his flight of last April in the Arctic. For new land is the objective of every Polar explorer—it is his ambition to change the lands as laid down upon the maps by cartographers who are guided at first by the scattered discoveries of the pioneers.

New Antarctic Chapter

When his photographs are closely studied and compared Wilkins will be able to write a wholly new chapter in the physical geography of the Antarctic.

No one has ever before flown over any part of the continent. We shall be shown for the first time what the great plateaus and mountain ranges of Graham Land look like from the air. We shall see the real composition of the Antarctic picture, something never before known. The science of physiography will be supplied with new illustrations on the part that ice plays in the sculpture of the land under polar conditions.

There will be abundant hints also to the geologist in the attitude of the rocks as disclosed here and there, where close photography, especially on his second flight, has given us a look at the grain of the rocks.

Sledge parties of the future, that perform the more patient work of rock and fossil collecting, will move with assurance to favorable sites where before they cold only guess as to what lay before them. It is as if the great South Polar continent were the enemy and the eyes of science had for the first time disclosed the disposition of that enemy's field.

Warm Season

It is remarkable that Wilkins on the past Wednesday was able to make a 500-mile flight 250 miles south of Deception Island, or almost to the Antarctic Circle—in view of the fact that he had to lift his load from the water.

It has been an exceptionally warm season in the Antarctic. Where he expected to find solid ice, from which to take off on skis, there is now open water. All readers of the classic sledge journeys, both north and south, will recall what a foe untimely warmth can be in the polar regions.

It is easy to understand this in the case of ground travel with equipment adapted to work upon snow and ice. It is not so easy to see how gravely it increased the problem of the airplane until one remembers that pontoons make a load in themselves, while skis are light. It was with skis that Wilkins outfitted his plane in his great flight of April, 1928, from Point Barrow to Spitzbergen.

It is gratifying to learn that in his second flight Wilkins has been able to make a full set of moving and still pictures, for these will give us the detail geography.

Wilkins' Polar Expedition Success

NEW YORK, Jan. 11—Although forced to abandon further exploration in the Antarctic, Capt. Sir Hubert Wilkins' mission was accomplished successfully before polar thaws ended his expedition.

He proved that Graham Land is not a part of the Antarctic continent, but an island by itself—a mystery that had puzzled scientists since explorers first invaded the Antarctic.

He snapped priceless photographs of the topography in that ice-covered region in a matter of hours, which would have required months had he not possessed an airplane.

MAN, GIRL TAKEN OFF TRAIN, HELD

Taken by detectives from a train as it was leaving the Pennsylvania station last night, Frank Bani, 27, or 3141 Terrace street, was held for court on a serious charge and Lillian Smith, 21, of Youngstown, was held for examination, after a hearing in Morals Court today.

The girl testified that she had met Bani while she was working in a restaurant at Ambridge, and that she had come to Pittsburgh and lived with him four days. He was taking her to a disorderly house in Monaco, she alleged. Bani, whom detectives accused of possessing a loaded revolver when arrested, also was charged with carrying concealed weapons.

WILKINS PLANS RETURN FROM SOUTH

south clouds obscured all land from sea level up to 4,000 feet, leaving the mountain peaks in sunshine and looking as though they were idly floating on a great gray feather bed.

From the plane the cloud surface looked most inviting and almost solid enough to land on, yet we knew that if our engine failed we would hurtle through the billowy masses to jagged peaks and yawning crevices beneath.

POSTPONE PLANS

Further south the cloud belt broke and we saw once again the Graham Land plateau, the sharply indented coastline and the gaping glaciers.

Soon after we passed the cloud belt and on account of our restricted load we had to turn and head for home, having reluctantly come to the conclusion that because of the unusual meteorological conditions during the early part of the season and the fact that our discoveries show that Graham Land is a group of islands not part of the Antarctic continent and not offering, as we thought it would, a connected line in case of engine failure, to postpone further efforts until next season.

We can then hope to carry our base to the continent itself, and start from there on a flight along the still undiscovered coast line from where our discoveries ended this year for a further 1,300 miles to the Ross Sea barrier.

Tomorrow the hunt for a safe place to store our machines and other equipment and then the preliminary work that will permit a speedy return home.

'Makin's' of 'Scotch' Found on Big Liner

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—(AP.)—Customs agents hunting smuggled narcotics among freight on Trans-Atlantic piers along the Hudson, last night discovered 3,340 gallons of whisky malt on the French Line pier, where it had been unloaded from the Isle de France. The agents declared the malt was equivalent to 92,000 quarts of bootleg Scotch and that as a result of the discovery the French liner faces a penalty of $70,800. Officials of the company were directed to appear at the Customs House today.

COUNCIL PLANS CHANGE IN CONDEMNATION POLICY

Council has tentatively agreed to change the procedure of passing legislation for condemning property for new street openings.

The existing system consists of authorizing a street improvement and paying property damages on the basis of awards made by the board of viewers.

Under the amended plan, Council would pass the ordinance authorizing the grade of the street and ask the board of viewers for an advance estimate of property damages.

If the estimate was excessive or greater than available funds justified, the contract ordinance for the physical work would be held up until a compromise was reached on potential damage claims.

SPEAKERS TELL AIM OF METRO CITY PLAN

The charter for Pittsburgh's proposed Metropolitan government will not wipe out any municipality. It will contain no "ripper features."

It may, as time goes on, take over functions of two or more municipalities which have the desire to surrender.

It will cover joint construction measures, such as caring for streets that are main channels.

These few points members of the Metropolitan Plan Commission have decided are potential units in the charter they are drafting. But the remainder they hope the citizens of the county will submit.

So speakers explained last night at a dinner given in honor of the commission by the inter-community relations committee of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce. The dinner was held in the chamber auditorium.

T. P. Gaylord, president of the chamber, spoke briefly, followed by Thomas H. Reed, research director; Morris Knowles, member of the commission; Joseph T. Miller, chairman of the commission; William E. Best, and others. A. L. Humphrey, former president of the chamber, was toastmaster.

Livingston Ouster Protest Is Filed

A protest against the ousting of Murray G. Livingston as sealer of weights and measures was made to Mayor Charles H. Kline, the Civil Service Commission and City Council today by the Oakland Board of Trade. The position was declared exempt from civil service rules, although Livingston had pending an appeal from his discharge by the Mayor. The protest is in the form of a resolution.

Woman Acquitted In Criminal Case

Mrs. Edna Andalino, of 114 Talbot avenue, Braddock, was acquitted by a directed verdict in Criminal Court today, of charges of performing an illegal operation on Helen Stalls, 19, of Dravosburg, last May 3. The girl died May 18 in McKeesport Hospital. Judge George V. Moore held the commonwealth's evidence against the woman was insufficient.

GLOWING HEALTH BROUGHT QUICKLY BY NEW KONJOLA

This Master Medicine Triumphs Where Other Remedies and Treatments Failed

Quickly has the good news of the triumphs of Konjola, the new and different medicine, spread through Pittsburgh and vicinity, just as it has everywhere it has been introduced. And no wonder, for this scientifically blended compound is doing here as elsewhere the wonders that have made Konjola the most talked-of medicine in America. There is no mystery about this remedy for the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and for rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness. Its amazing success is founded on just one outstanding quality—merit. Konjola is made to make good, and does it. How this super-remedy triumphs when all else tried has failed, how it brings new and abundant health in place of sickness and suffering, is being explained by the Konjola Man, who may be seen at the McCulloch Drug Store, Penn Ave. and Sixth St., this city. Those who suffer and would be well again; those who are weary of a futile search for health are urged to meet the Konjola man. But do not expect promises nor claims, rather expect to learn what this remarkable medicine is doing. After all, deeds, results are what count. Konjola is a medicine of deeds, not words. As an illustration, take the interesting experience of Miss Alice Coon, Ikeno, Pa.

MISS ALICE COON.

"How happy I am that I listened to the advice of friends who insisted that I try Konjola for the stomach trouble and run-down condition from which I suffered for a year and a half. As I had sought relief in many medicines, treatments and tonics, all without the slightest results, I had little or no faith left in any remedy. I thought my case was beyond help, but I was prevailed upon, however, to take Konjola, and I am here today to let you see how well I am again. The first bottle did not help me, but I kept on with the treatment, though I had hoped to find relief instantly. Then, to my surprise and happiness, I began to feel better. By the time I had taken the fourth bottle I had a fine appetite, and to my delight and astonishment, found I could eat anything without the painful after effects I used to have. My strength is coming back rapidly, and I am gaining in weight, thanks to hearty meals thoroughly digested and to nights of uninterrupted sleep. I feel like a different person without the stomach trouble and the headaches that were an issue. I feared that I would go blind. I regard it a privilege to tell of Konjola's wonderful work, and strongly recommend it to all who are going through what I suffered."

By thousands who have been released from the thralldom of pain to a new and glorious health by Konjola, this super-medicine is called a blessing, a boon, a godsend. Konjola is ready to help you as it has the happy army of men and women, young and old, who owe their new happiness in life to Konjola's powers.

Konjola is not a chemical, pill or capsule, but a remarkable liquid compound which contains juices extracted from twenty-two of Nature's finest medicinal root and herbs. These cleanse and invigorate the inner organs, bring new feeling of health over the system in general in a natural and safe way.

THE KONJOLA MAN

Is at the McCulloch Drug Store, Penn Ave. and Sixth St., Pittsburgh, where he is meeting the public daily, explaining the merits of this remarkable remedy. Free samples given.

8 CLAIM SHARE IN $1,000 OSER REWARD

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Jan. 11—William Edward Kaltenbaugh, self-confessed slayer of John and Bertha Oser, of near Fulton, O., behind the prison bars at Canton, O., today developed here today a contention concerning the $1,000 reward offered by Ohio authorities for the arrest and conviction of the murderer.

The contenders are Mrs. Sol Festosa, who furnished the first tangible clue in the case, six officers of the New Castle police force and Deputy Sheriff Albert Bell, of Canton, one of the arresting officers.

Mrs. Festosa contends she is entitled to the major portion of the reward because she furnished the clue that brought the arrest.

It was at her home that Kaltenbaugh appeared Tuesday night and asked permission to use her telephone. Her suspicions aroused, she notified police and told them her caller had used the name of Gladys Espy. The Espy girl was located and through her the name of the murderer was learned.

In view of these facts she has filed application with Stark county (O.) authorities for a major portion of the reward.

Youngstown Mills Pay $1,011,000 More

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Jan. 11.—December payroll of $7,663,169, second highest month of 1928, brought total payroll for the year to $84,249,882, a gain over 1927 of $1,011,468. The 1928 payroll established a new yearly record.

DAPPER MURDER PLACED AMONG UNSOLVED CRIMES

The murder of Dr. Harry R. Dapper, young Carrick physician, last August 21, was placed definitely in the category of unsolved crimes by Chief County Detective George W. Murren in his annual report made public today.

The Dapper killing, on a lonely road in Mifflin township, was only one of 16 unsolved slayings recorded in 1928, in most instances the victims were taken for a ride and slain. The slayers are listed as unknown.

Chief Murren adds that crime here is not greater than in other large cities and below the average of many.

"After all is said and done," he concludes, his report, "Allegheny county, with 1,600,000 population, is a fine place to live in."

Last year the county detectives arrested 1,726 persons charged with maintaining gambling devices or operating gaming houses, an increase of 1,137, for the total of 160 per cent.

Murren says he investigated 7,267 cases in 1928 and made 1,362 arrests as against 6,067 cases in 1927 and 758 arrests. Known slayers not apprehended were two.

Zoning Adjustment Cases Slump in '28

The zoning board of adjustment handled fewer cases last year than it did in 1927, according to the annual report of the board submitted yesterday to Mayor Charles H. Kline. During the first 11 months of last year the board handled more cases than it did for the corresponding months of 1927, but in November and December there was a slump. The board says the practice of meeting with prospective builders and buyers to talk over proposed improvements or purchases has proved helpful.

Foreign Debts Topic Of Yale Professor

Before the World War the American people owed approximately $5,000,000,000 abroad and today Europe is indebted to the United States by $14,000,000,000, Prof. H. S. Furniss of Yale declared last night in an address in Carnegie Hall. Prof. Furniss, who is head of the social and political science department at Yale, discussed the international economic position of the United States.

The professor of this country, Prof. Furniss declared, is to find out how this indebtedness can be offset by these foreign nations in view of the fact that there is a yearly annual deficit of approximately $1,000,000,000 in the trade relationship with us.

Two Mill Workers Fatally Injured

Two fatal mill accidents were reported to the coroner early today, the victims dying in local hospitals several hours after being injured while at work. Mignon Crevici, 26, of Ambridge, died in the Allegheny General Hospital from injuries suffered when hit by a shifting engine in the American Bridge Company plant at Ambridge.

William Wynn, 49, of Chester, W. Va., died in the Presbyterian Hospital of a fracture of the skull. He was injured last night while working in the American Sheet and Tin Plate Company plant at Chester.

Sleet on Planes Halts Air Mail To Cleveland

Sleet forming on the wings of their planes caused two mail pilots to turn back to Bettis Field after they had started for Cleveland from the local airport. R. L. Baker and Horace Stark, carrying mail to Cleveland, were the men forced to return.

The mail was shipped back to the Pittsburgh postoffice and taken to Cleveland on trains. Eugene Cecil, another mail pilot, made a successful trip from Cleveland to Pittsburgh.

AVOID DIZZY SPELLS

Never well. Always tired and fagged out. Beauty tossed away by neglect. To be beautiful and to keep youth the system must be free from poisonous backwash of constipation which often causes dizzy spells. For 20 years, Dr. F. M. Edwards gave his patients, in place of calomel, a compound of vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. Known by their olive color. They free the system of poisons that ravage health, energy, beauty.

You need never have sallow complexion, dull eyes, coated tongue, throbbing headaches—all signs that your bowels are clogged. Liver is torpid. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly. They act smoothly and without griping. How much better you'll feel and look! Everywhere wise men and women who know the value of good health take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. Our Daily Short Story

LOVE OF THE LAND

By GUY SWARINGEN

BRUCE GRAHAM, loading shocked corn on his wagon, frowned in abstraction. For once, he derived no pleasure from using his great muscles. He worked listlessly, thinking that, at 54, he was through.

Age was not so much a matter of years as a failing of incentive. Laban Earll, nearing 60, worked as tirelessly. Ha, Bruce was quitting.

Scorning his weakness did not help. It did not stem his grief over the fact that these lush acres always his home, would next year be under water. That was the source of his feeling of bitterness. The big, sunburned man did not look like an emotional person. His was a silent attachment that had grown through a lifetime of toil on the land, drawing from it always even while he enhanced its fertility.

Bruce had strenuously opposed the dam, farther down, which would back water around the house where he had always lived. Not from greed. He had never been paid more money than he had ever expected to own. Nor set that he lacked other land. Back on higher levels Bruce still owned more acres than two men could till.

He had put his best care into these rich bottoms, had no wish to live elsewhere. They were both home and family to him.

But he did not mean to see the change. He would go away.

Where? To some city that would smother him? To some resort full of old folks living on dead paste of young folks without ambition to plan their futures? To live out his days as a loafer? Not that it mattered.

His horses nickered. Bruce turned his head. Bess Early came striding between stubs of stalks. Between man and woman was a resemblance, of kind rather than family. Both were tall, blue-eyed, brown-haired. Each had a long face that looked grave and intent, as though their thoughts were similar. Yet no one would have taken them for relatives.

Bess gave each horse an apple, showing that she had expected to find them there. Bruce had known her all her life, 29 years.

She came nearer, standing out of his way. Presently she asked: "Bruce, is it true that you're going away?"

Bruce nodded, surprised. He had told but one person.

"It's good land back there, Bruce."

"Those clay hills!" Bruce glanced at the rich land on which they stood, so unlike the poorer acres they were discussing.

"Yes—if it's worked right." Plainly Bess was not trying to argue him out of his decision. It never occurred to her that she could. Theirs was a breed that did not waste time in voicing half-formed intentions that could be lightly changed. "You can make it pay, if you know how."

"Know how? Bess, what do you think I went to agricultural college for?"

"True for you, Bruce. But there are so many people up the valley who don't. What will they do, when they have to depend on their higher land?"

Our Daily Short Story

LOVE OF THE LAND

By GUY SWARINGEN

"Haven't I told them? I s'pose they'll drift into towns and get such jobs as they can. They wouldn't help me fight against the dam."

"They don't have many chances at that much money. You could teach them."

"Teach them?" Bruce stared at her. "I teach them?"

"The county commissioners are going to appoint a new farm demonstrator." She dismissed that: "But I didn't come to tell you what you already know. I came to see if you really intend to sell your land?"

Bruce was turning over the idea of teaching his neighbors what he had learned about farming land which they customarily left in standing timber, where they might do a few days of hunting or logging each winter. It was true that he was equipped to serve as farm demonstrator, and conservor of timber. But to remain so near the home he had lost—

"Yes, I mean to sell when I dispose of my crop."

"Because I have—I know a buyer." Bess spoke with unwonted hesitancy, and a shade of deeper color touched her face.

"You do? Who?"

"Melvin Steine."

"Melvin's no farmer. And where'll he get the capital?"

"Melvin's a manager, Bruce. He's been saving and investing. The store is hurting his health. He wants to get outdoors."

There was a brief silence. Then Bess added:

"He's asked me to mary him. We'll want a home in the country."

"Marry him?" Bruce stared rather numbly, thinking that over. No cause for surprise. Bess was no longer a girl, but a woman; a very attractive woman. Natural that some man would want to marry her. Then—

"Do you love him, Bess?" The frank curiosity of an old friend.

Again the show of color. "I'm fond of him. I'll soon be 30."

"That's so." Bruce nodded abstractedly. "You're nearly 30."

She added "Pa and ma are well fixed, and can do without me." These two used the speech of plain country folks. "If I'm ever going to make a home of my own, it's time to begin."

"Yes, it's time—If you love him—"

Bruce let his words drift into silence. Bess waited until he added:

"No good to tell you now, but I wish I'd asked you that. I'm not asking you to break your promise. Just want you to know I love you, too."

"Bruce—" A flutter of two hands nearly as strong as his own. "I haven't promised. Melvin asked me, and we've been considering plans. If—if you want me—"

He captured those strong hands, and they were softly still in his grasp. "Strange I hadn't realized it. I must have loved you always."

"Ah, Bruce!" Her eyes were bright and proud. "We'll stay on the farm always, won't we?"

Bruce smiled contentedly. She needed no answer to that.

Nestlé's flies with BYRD!

INTO the frozen Antarctic where a forced landing would mean weeks of dependence upon emergency rations — Nestlé's Milk Chocolate flies with Byrd!

Wherever quick energy and rich concentrated nourishment are required Nestlé's Milk Chocolate is the inevitable choice.

Nestlé's Milk Chocolate went to the North Pole with Commander Byrd. It crossed the Atlantic in the Graf Zeppelin on the epochal voyage of the first trans-Atlantic air-liner. And now it flies to the South Pole as part of the precious emergency ration of the Antarctic Expedition. Success to this gallant venture!

A Whale of an Opportunity

WELFARE GIFT FROM AFRICA

A contribution of $100 for the Welfare Fund of Pittsburgh was received yesterday from South Africa. Augustus K. Oliver, president of the Welfare Fund, said it was the farthest-traveled check that had been received and indicated the world-wide interest in Pittsburgh's effort to centralize the support of its philanthropies.

The gift came from Mrs. C. Lochner de Villiers, of Constantia, Cape Colony, who before her marriage, was Miss Clara Hussey, of Pittsburgh. Mrs. de Villiers, mailing her check early in December, said she had just heard of the Pittsburgh campaign and was doubly interested on account of efforts which were under way to establish a community chest in Cape Town.

SISTER FAILS TO FREE PALLAS

Another effort to set at liberty Tom Pallas, youngest brother of the condemned bandit-slayer Paul Jaworski, was made today by his sister, Mrs. Catherine Logan, of Detroit.

Bringing $5,000 with her, Mrs. Logan called upon District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner and asked that $5,000 bail for Jaworski's "kid brother" be reduced. Gardner and Mrs. Logan's counsel, Attorney M. Barney Cohen, conferred with Judge Ambrose B. Reid, who agreed to reduce the bail to $5,000.

Mrs. Logan couldn't meet that amount and left without her brother. The boy was charged with subornation to perjury at the trial of Sam Pallas, who helped Paul shoot his way out of jail here in 1927.

Girl Found Living On Boat, Identified

A girl found living on an aged man's houseboat in the Monongahela River, near Homestead, Wednesday, was identified at the county detective bureau today as Suzanne Pillar, 15, by her parents, John and Mary Pillar, of 417 George street, Braddock.

The girl was committed to St. Francis Hospital for observation and a petition was presented in Common Pleas Court, asking that she be placed in the care of Juvenile Court authorities. The parents traced the girl, who had been missing for a month, through a newspaper picture.

OWN YOUR HOME IDEA GROWS

Pittsburgh remains and is increasingly becoming a city of individual homes, despite the apparent trend to apartment-house life, the city zoning board of adjustment stated today in its annual report to Mayor Charles H. Kline. The report was made by Wilmer M. Jacoby, secretary of the board.

Most of the appeals filed with it were concerned with one-family dwellings, the board reported, submitting an opinion that the trend toward standardized homes in vast modern apartments was more imagined than real.

In 1928 the board disposed of 2,064 cases and was reversed only once by the courts. In 1928 the higher courts returned decisions on three cases appealed in 1927 and in two of these the board was upheld.

Gossip and Pictures of Persons Who Work to Amuse World

JACK GILBERT GOING ABROAD AND GRETA GARBO PLANS RETURN

By REGINA CREWE.

(Copyright, 1929, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 11.

GRETA GARBO is coming home from Europe about March 1. And about May 1 Jack Gilbert is leaving Hollywood for a European vacation. There has been some doubting as to whether or not Greta would return. But this decision now from Metro sets all fears at rest. It is something of a surprise, too, to learn that Gilbert is deserting our shores. But the question of Jack's remaining away long, Greta's first film upon her return will be a continuation of the Flirtation stories, "Tiger Sam." Maybe she and Jack will appear together in this one before the urge to travel again separates them.

GRETA GARBO

Mrs. George Fawcett will appear under that name for the first time on any screen when she plays with her husband in Director Richard Wallace's picture, "Innocents in Paris." Mrs. Fawcett is known on the stage as Percy Haswell, and has gained as great success in the theater as George has on the screen.

Claire Windsor Tearle Heroine

CLAIRE WINDSOR is the final selection as Conway Tearle's heroine in the all-talking picture, "The Time, the Place and the Girl," will rest upon the shoulders of Bert Black. Bert has been cast in the role of a big stock and bond man, and his part offers plenty of opportunity for him to give us giggles. It is Bert's first talkie, and he has been borrowed from Metro to play it.

Claire Windsor

"Here are the dimensions considered ideal out at the Paramount studios, and girls who can fulfill them will be cast in Clara Bow's "Wild Party" picture. How near do you come to them? Height, 5 feet 5½ inches; weight, 118 pounds; neck, 12½ inches; bust, 32 inches; waist, 26 inches; hips, 37 inches.

Little Rich Girl Back on Screen

"THE POOR LITTLE RICH GIRL" is back in pictures. She is Viola Dana. At 5 she was starred by Belasco in that production. For the first year of movies, Viola was a child star. Then she grew up. Now, Viola, who comes from Brooklyn, N. Y., has been recovering from a severe illness. But now she is completely recovered and will bring a new type of characterization to the screen. Heretofore Viola has always played ingenue. But in the future she will be a leading woman. Her voice is great in the talkies, they tell me. And, best of all, she and "Lefty" Flynn have made up again. "Lefty," too, has had a voice test and will take a fling at sound pictures.

Viola Dana.

Filming Cohen's Darktown Yarns

THE last of the Octavus Roy Cohen "Darktown" talking pictures has been completed. It is "The Melancholy Dame," and brings Cohen's humorous colored characters to screen life. The scene is a colored cabaret, and a "Red Hot" Negro jazz band is prominently featured. The second of the series is "Music Hath Harms," which goes into production shortly at the Christie Studios. "Florian Slappey," and all Cohen's well known characters appear.

The business of changing titles continues merrily. "Tong War" is now "Chinatown Nights." "The Missing Man" becomes "Strange Cargo," and "Nightstick" will be released as "Alibi."

REAL BLISS, THIS :-: ALL IN FUN :-: OH, SO SOULFUL

James Hall has good reason for that blissful look, Jean Arthur being that reason. They play opposite each other in "The Canary Murder Case."

Bebe Daniels' cavortings will take place next in a newspaper story for Paramount release, and, if they are as amusing as usual, we say let 'er cavort.

Ruth Chatterton and John Loder, in "The Doctor's Secret," an all-talkie, seems to have come upon one of those poetic sweetly solemn moments.

Local Magicians Plan Feast for Thurston

The Pittsburgh Association of Magicians will entertain Howard Thurston tonight after the performance in the Fitt. A banquet in his honor, will be held in the Georgian room of the William Penn.

Mrs. Thurston and Miss Jane Thurston also will be guests.

George Seibel, dramatic critic of the Sun-Telegraph, will be the toastmaster.

The local club is officially known as Pittsburgh Assembly, No. 18, of the Society of American Magicians. Thurston is president of the national organization.

MUSIC PLAY AND DRAMA COMING

Twenty or more scenes make up "Echoes of 1929," starring Tommy "Bozo" Snyder, coming to the Nixon, for one week only, opening Monday evening, January 14. In the company are Sam Green, Rowena Scott, ingenue-prima donna, the Cahill Sisters and the Follies Four, melody boys.

Thurston, magician, now playing in the Fitt, also is an actor and comedian. Seats are now on sale for the second week of his limited engagement. Matinees will be given Thursday and Saturday.

Mae West, in the New York dramatic success, "Diamond Lil," comes to the Alvin for an engagement of one week, beginning next Monday night, with matinees Wednesday and Saturday. "Diamond Lil" comes with the entire New York cast and production intact.

Gus Van and Joe Schenck, songsters, who will headline the two-a-day Keith-Albee-Orpheum vaudeville in the Davis, next week, are offering what is said to be the best program of their career. They will be heard in a variety of sentimental and comedy numbers.

N. Y. Philharmonic Here Tonight, Saturday

The New York Philharmonic Orchestra, augmented to 121 players, will give the fourth pair of concerts in the Pittsburgh Orchestra Association series in Syria Mosque tonight and tomorrow afternoon. The major work tonight will be Strauss' "Ein Heldenleben." ("The Hero's Life"), and for tomorrow afternoon Beethoven's Seventh Symphony.

The overture to the "Flying Dutchman," "Waldweben," from "Siegfried," and "Magic Fire Scene," from "Die Walkure," three Wagnerian works, also will be given tonight. The "Overture Sinfonia," by Bach, and "Mozart Symphony in E Flat Major," also will be given tomorrow afternoon.

William Mengelberg will conduct both concerts.

TRIANGLE'S 'FOURTH' SIDE SHORTEST LINE TO JAIL

Because she tried to square an emotional triangle by adding a fourth corner—the law—Grace Shields, 37, of 8 East Stockton avenue, languished in jail today while police investigated the possible connection of the man in the case, Harry Deer, 35, of 120 Versailles avenue, East Pittsburgh, with an alleged murder and holdup.

The man and woman were remanded for further investigation after a hearing before Magistrate A. D. Brandon in Morals Court. They were arrested by North Side police last night when the woman accused Deer of having slain a man in New Castle, Pa. New Castle police today said they had no unsolved murders there.

The woman testified she had lived happily with Deer since 10 years ago, when he was released from the penitentiary after serving a term for robbery. But a few weeks ago, she said, another woman came into Deer's life, there was a quarrel, blows were traded, and she went to the police.

6 STILL SOUGHT IN VICE PROBE

Six alleged racketeers named in informations preferred by District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner as a result of the grand jury investigation are being sought by detectives, the last of the 46 persons for whom warrants have been issued.

Those sought are J. A. Fuchs, Meyran avenue; P. J. McDonough, Lyceum Building, and William Walters, alias Wallace, who are charged with conducting lotteries. Joe Steel, Larimer avenue; George Shaviska, Troy Hill, and Jack Blance are charged with violating the dry laws.

The first of the hearings before Alderman Thomas Jones of the South Side will be held next week, at which time defendants accused of conducting a lottery will be arraigned.

"NANCY DEANE" by ROY L. FOLEY

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Nancy Deane, golden haired, dark eyed, has lived all her life with the O'Days in Washington, Pa.; for two years she has worked in the station lunch room to help pay the rent. There she meets John Blair who invites her to go to the circus. Nancy loses her job and learns she is really the granddaughter of the rich Montgomery Deane in Pittsburgh and that her mother, Julie Abbott, a circus performer, is coming to town and wants to see her. Nancy goes to the show with John and sees Julie drop from a trapeze; she rushes wildly to the hospital where her mother dies, telling her she loved her father. Nancy suddenly decided to go to Pittsburgh and Blair, whom she has grown to admire, gives her a letter to a college friend who runs the "Wear-Ever Mills." On the train she meets Ginger Varden, a model, who takes her to her own boarding house and invites her to share her room. Nancy is shocked at its disorder and doesn't know quite what to think of her new companion. Two friends of Ginger, Jerry Durant and Vic Flemming, take the girls to a party in the studio of a woman artist. Vic goes crazy over Nancy's blonde beauty and has a brawl with a man who he thinks is too attentive to her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

NANCY jumped to her feet, panicky, and started toward the door. Her legs felt strangely inadequate. She raised the back of her hands to her beating temples, then let them fall like lead, loosening strands of yellow hair that hung in her eyes. She didn't seem to care.

She was standing in the middle of the room, trying to think, trying to get her bearings, when Vic returned, followed by Ginger, Collette and a half dozen others.

She must have presented a sorry sight, for they all burst out laughing.

"Smatter, kiddo?" Ginger asked. "Are you tight, kiddo?"

It wasn't the ginger that Nancy had started out with. All the snap seemed to have gone out of her. She appeared anything but the peppy girl Nancy had met on the train earlier that day.

"Let me go, please go away," Nancy pleaded. "Take me home, Vic, please."

She forced her way through the noisy, half intoxicated circle, stumbled across the studio to the hallway, snatched her shabby little coat, jammed her felt hat over her disordered hair and stood waiting for Vic to come.

"Vic, Vic, Mr. Fleming" she called. "Vic, oh, Vic."

She knew that she was calling by his first name a man whom she had met only a few hours before, and she knew he was "tight" as the other girls in the party had said.

"Vic!"

She stamped her foot.

"Vic!"

Vic paid no attention. He didn't hear her, or he didn't want to hear.

Angry now, over tired, excited, Nancy ran across the studio, her high heels clicking on the pointed floor, grabbed his arm and swung him around and demanded that he take her home right then.

"Now, Vic. Right this minute."

"Home—" As Nancy followed him she thought how ridiculous her demand was. Home. Her new home. Ginger Varden's cluttered, untidy, hot, perfume laden room on the third floor of "The Carmondy."

But that, even, was better than this place. She ached to get into the room, to fall onto Ginger's bed.

In the vestibule Nancy met Howard Wescott. He and his startlingly white faced companion were telling Collette that they had been to the theater and taken a spin out the Frankstown road. On their way lights in the studio had caused them to stop.

Collette introduced them. It didn't take more than a glance whirling as Nancy's senses were, for her to see that Howard Wescott was different than most of the men there. He had the mannerisms of one used to wealth. His very clothes looked different. He was asking Collette about some advertising drawings, evidently anxious that the work be hurried.

"I must have the drawings by Thursday at the very latest," he said. "The Wear-Ever catalogue goes to press on Monday. We're two weeks behind last years schedule now."

"Wear-Ever!"

Nancy pricked up her ears when she heard the word. Weren't the Wear-Ever Knitting Mills where she was going to work. Wescott—wasn't the letter of introduction John Blair had given her addressed to a Mr. Wescott, general manager of the Wear-Ever Mills?

Howard Wescott turned to Nancy and Vic.

"Going our way?" he asked. "Anyone going East? Anyone want a lift?"

Someone spoke up that they lived on Craig street, near Fifth avenue—was Mr. Wescott going that way?"

"Sure thing," he answered. "I live near Craig street myself. Just a little south, on Fifth, across from the Deanes."

Deane! Nancy's grandparents' name. He must mean the Montgomery Deanes, whom she had never seen, never had known existed until Julie Abbott, the circus lady, had flashed into her life from nowhere, flashing out just as quickly, but altering Nancy's whole life.

Her head was beating again. She felt that unless she got out of Collette's studio she would smother. She ran out of the door and down the dim hall, Vic lurching after her.

The sun was pouring into Ginger's room when Nancy awoke next morning in a sort of terror. She jumped from the bed and stood in the middle of the untidy room trying to remember how she got there. She looked at her crumpled dress; she was fully clothed. She even was wearing her shoes. She looked at her feet and thought how silly silver slippers, Ginger's slippers, looked at that hour.

Down the front of her tan crepe de chine dress—no dress was a string of spots, and on the side of her skirt was a wine stain.

She glanced at the bed. Ginger was lying there, on her back. Her mouth was open. One slipper was off, lying on the floor.

Nancy fixed her eyes on it. A giddy slipper it was. Scuffed. Ridiculously high heeled. It seemed to typify Ginger. Ginger, too, was fully dressed. Waves of revulsion swept over Nancy.

She looked into the mirror of the littered dresser. The girl who looked back at her couldn't be she. She was so white.

The chimes of the cathedral, only a few blocks away, started to strike. One, two, three—how slowly they struck—nine, ten, eleven.

Nancy O'Day had never slept until 11 o'clock in all her 18 years. Mad and Barry were always up long before 6, summer and winter. What if they could look into this room now?

Nancy shuddered at the thought. What would they think of Ginger, what of "The Carmondy," of Vic, of Collette?

"They don't know there are such people," Nancy mused. "I didn't myself, until last night."

Ginger awoke with a sigh, stretched, rubbed the sleep out of her eyes, and started to laugh, shrilly.

"Of all the pictures of misery—you look as though you'd lost your last friend instead of finding a lot of new ones. What ails you, Goldie Locks? Look at Ginger and smile, and say—give a pull to that shade. The light is hard on my eyes."

She jumped up and started pulling her crumpled dress over her tangled hair.

"We must have both flopped right in the way we was," she said. "How would you like some good, black coffee, Goldie. If you'll just lift the lid of that box over there you'll find a percolator and some coffee."

She started to detach an electric curling iron from the light socket above the dresser.

"It'll only take a minute to perk," she said. "And then Goldie Locks and Ginger will be ready to face the cruel, cruel world the morning after the night before. Some party, wasn't it? How'd you like Collette?"

Nancy didn't answer. She couldn't say what she truly thought.

"What's the matter, kiddo? Not homesick, are you?"

Still Nancy couldn't answer. She tried to mumble something but the words died on her lips. She opened the box to find the percolator. In it, beside the percolator and a package of coffee, was a plate of hard rolls, two cans of sardines, a corkscrew, some stale crackers, hairpins, cheap magazines.

"Guess I don't want anything to eat," Nancy finally forced out. "I have a terrible headache. I think I'll go out for some air."

"There's some aspirin over there in the top, left hand drawer, and some bromo, too. They ought to fix you up," Ginger offered.

"No, thanks."

Nancy tore off the wine stained dress, changed into one of tan flannel, one she had made herself, and ran from the room, down the three flights of gloomy stairs and into the sun drenched street. She wanted to be alone, to think. She hurried along Biddle street toward the lake and Juneau Park.

LOVE'S AWAKENING

A Continuation of Love's Embers

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Confides Her Fears Regarding Mary to Lillian

"ON Mary's account?" Lillian echoed. I hastily told her of Marion's talk with me which had made me realize the deplorable condition of Mary's wardrobe. I kept back, however, Marion's generous impulsive offer, to share her own new things with Mary, for it had been given me as a confidence.

"Dicky has gone out to cash a check," I said, "so that he can give Mary enough money for an enjoyable shopping trip of her own. But I don't see how he can get back in 10 minutes. There's no bank that he knows so near the station."

"He doesn't need a bank with Harry in tow," Mr. Underwood's wife said. "That's the reason Dicky took him along. Harry has the most bizarre acquaintances in every nook and corner of the city, some of them law-abiding, others the opposite. But every one of them, from a speak-easy proprietor to a garage owner, is always able to flash a roll of bills, and Harry's credit is gilt-edged with every one of them. I'm a lot easier in my mind for your information. They'll be back, pronto, and of course if it's for Mary, I don't mind waiting. The child is shabby, now I think of it. What do you suppose she's been spending her money for?"

She stopped short and looked at me with eyes suddenly gleaming.

"Now, I have it!" she exclaimed. "I'll wager you the cherry on the fruit cup that it's Mary's check book she's worrying over instead of her note-book. She's afraid somebody will look at it and see where she's been spending her money."

I struggled for an instant with my resentment, then remembered what a tower of strength Lillian had been in the rescue of Mary from Jack Leslie. It was only her due to share the little knowledge I had.

"I'll not take your wager," I said, "for I happen to know the flat case, Dicky's gift, which she dropped, contained her bank book and check book. I know because I picked them up and put them in my own bag, where they now are. I needn't tell you that I feel like a—"

"A combination of yeggman and pickpocket," she finished with a grin as I hesitated. "Knowing your Plymouth Rock brand of conscience, I am able to supply the simile without any trouble. But if my opinion is worth anything to you—"

"It!" I interrupted, with emphasis.

"Thanks," she returned, "that makes it easier to tell you that I think you've done the only possible thing. Ordinarily, of course, it would be unthinkable for you to look at them, but you're in loco parentis, you know, which sometimes is dog Latin for 'locoed parent.' Yes, I know," as I put up my hands in laughing protest—"that's an ancient as well as an awful wheze, but it happens to fit in this case. Granted that Mary is one of the dearest sweetest girls in the world, granted that she has retrieved that abysmal folly of hers in wonderful fashion, yet she has proved herself utterly irresponsible once and, therefore, you must watch out for any slightest deviation from the normal on her part."

"Then you think," I faltered, "that I would be justified in looking over those books before I give them back to her?"

"Or put them where she can find them, without suspecting that you have had them," Lillian amended. "You'll be able to decide that later. But as to being 'justified' my dear mediaeval dancer on the point of a cambric needle—I'm getting my similes mixed, but never mind—I shall take you to the nearest mental clinic for examination if you don't grasp this Heaven-sent opportunity to find out what the child is up to. But what do you know about this? Here are our men, back before the time they set. I'm ready to die now. I've seen a miracle."

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

See That Baby Gets Plenty of Sunlight

IF a baby thinks and could talk, what a lot we might learn about how to treat infants. It is true that a youngster may yell its protest, yet we are often at a loss to know just what it is that displeases the child. We are not sure whether it is gas or a pin.

DR. COPELAND

It isn't a bad idea to be imagining often how you would feel if circumstanced exactly as the child is. As an example, suppose you try to think how you would feel if you were bundled up with a couple of thick army blankets, a woolen hood and long, thick stockings.

In these modern days many tiny babies are swaddled in thick and tight clothing and older children are dressed in short socks and shorter skirts. It wouldn't be a bad idea to strike an average between the two practices.

The baby needs the effects of sunshine on the skin. The older child needs to be better protected from the cold.

We learn much from the appearance of the skin. That gives a good idea of the health of the grown-up. Its condition determines to a great extent the welfare of the baby.

Activity of the skin depends on the circulation of the blood. This in turn is determined by the care of the body's surfaces. The doctor makes a close study of the skin and the mother will do well to imitate him.

Exposure to sunshine is one of the very best ways to keep the skin in prime condition. Exercise is another important consideration.

Now you will laugh at me. "Surely," you say, "you do not expect an infant to get out every day for a long walk."

No I don't. But babies require exercise even if they cannot walk. Strip off all those thick garments and bands. Then see what the baby does.

Find a place in your house where a wide couch, the bed, or a strip of carpet can get the full effect of the bright sunshine. Make sure it is warm enough in that room not to chill the baby. Spread a sheet on the chosen spot and place the naked baby there.

MY, what a time of wiggling and kicking it will have! Let the little chap kick and squirm to his heart's content. That is baby's way of getting exercise. That is the way nature intended to strengthen the muscles and improve the circulation.

Improvements have been made in the manufacture of glass. It is made now so that the material which cuts out certain qualities of light is eliminated. The sunlight has all its good effects, which cannot be felt unless such glass is used in the windows. But if the day is warm enough to open the windows, then the baby will get the direct rays of the sun and every bit of their virtues. But if you haven't the new-fangled glass give your baby all you can of the sunlight, even if it is filtered through ordinary glass.

Keep the skin clean by regular bathing. If the skin does not act as it should, have the tub bath as hot as it can be borne and continue it rather longer than usual. Sweating is good for everybody.

The more active the skin is the less strain will be placed on the kidneys. In this way the poisons of the body are eliminated.

Deference to Age

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

If a young lady of 25 and a woman companion of about the same age are seated in a tearoom and a woman of 50 or 55 stops at their table, should the younger women rise while she is there, or remain seated and talk the few minutes that she remains there. If only one of the ladies knows this older woman should she alone rise or should both rise?

READER.

IT is a gesture of courtesy and gracious respect for the younger women to rise, and this is the ideal thing for them to do. The older woman, if she is an accustomed person, will doubtless say, "Please don't get up. I'm just staying for a minute," or "Don't let me disturb you, for I just wanted to chat for a minute," or something of that kind.

Both women should rise whether one or both know her.

Not Necessary

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Will you please tell me whether it is proper to send cards of appreciation to all people who paid personal respects to our daughter who passed away last week? I do not mean those who sent floral offerings—just those who paid personal calls.

M. T.

IT is not necessary for you to send a note of appreciation for the calls of sympathy made by your friends, but we do write notes, very short notes, to friends who write letters of sympathy or who send flowers.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Saturday, January 12

A DAY of many conflicting issues is the augury based on the contradictory forces emanating from certain important planetary phases. Although there may be much opportunity and aggressive grasp of those, especially in advanced or unusual lines of endeavor, yet a tendency to strife, acrimony and headlong acts may lead to bewildering issues, with consequent defeat, unhappiness. With control and good management there are advantages assured. Beware deceit and slander.

Those whose birthday it is are at the threshold of a year of many fine opportunities, especially in advanced or unique enterprises, but these may be negatived by indulgence in rash, impulsive and disagreeable conduct, and may provoke slander and enmity. Safeguard also against fraud and misrepresentation.

A child born on this day may have many contradictions of character unless properly educated in restraint of speech and calm behavior. It should be talented and should succeed in important offices with corporations or societies.

Never anger made good guard for itself.—Shakespeare.

Meditations of a Wife

By HELEN ROWLAND

The Typical American Girl.

"WHAT is the typical American Girl?" asks a feminine reader. "Is she a society girl, a business girl, a home girl, an athletic girl, a vamp, a gold-digger, a flapper or a college girl?"

* * *

YESSUM! She IS! All of them! That is her charm! There is no monotony about her. She is a perfect chameleon!

* * *

She may be a home girl in the morning, a society girl in the afternoon, a vamp in the evening and an athletic girl over the week-ends.

HELEN ROWLAND

But, first, last and always she is a BUSINESS GIRL!

Whether she works at running a taxicab, running a typewriter, or running for a political office, she WORKS!

* * *

Whether she flies an aeroplane or runs a tea room, whether she carves statues or makes artificial flowers, she makes a business of it!

* * *

Whether she shines as a screen star or shines finger-nails in a barber shop, whether she makes pies or portraits, whether she decorates houses or decorates the scenery in a beauty chorus, she is a 100 per cent business woman!

* * *

This is the Land of the Working Woman! Where society leaders run dress shops, prima donnas run beauty shops, professional beauties run business offices, and professional athletes run health classes.

* * *

This is the Land of the Woman-with-a-job! Where the only bored and unhappy women are the women without jobs, and the only women who are out of the picture are the women who live in idleness.

* * *

The average business girl can come home from the office, get into a kitchen apron and turn out a dinner that would do the old-fashioned "home girl" credit. She can grub in a newspaper office all day, and go out and dance like a butterfly all evening. She can swim, flirt, run a motor car and preside at a tea-table, as gracefully as though she had done nothing else all her life! But only AFTER business hours!

* * *

Helen Wills, Mary Garden, Amelia Earhart, Elise Janis, Anita Loos—these are some of the "Typical American Girls," young and older, who have carried the fame of the American girl abroad. Hard-working women who have made their own JOBS! Clear-headed, vital, level-eyed business women!

* * *

Molluses, parasites, social climbers, and merely decorative women may exist here and there, like the buffalo and the Indian. But they are types of the Vanishing American Woman.

* * *

The Typical American Girl is a Business Girl—not a playgirl; A personality—not a parlor ornament.

DURANT, QUITTING AUTO FIRM, TO REDEEM STOCK

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—(AP.)—W. C. Durant in his announcement yesterday that he was withdrawing from active direction of Durant Motors, Inc., said that he planned to reimburse "every single original stockholder" of Durant Motors and of every other organization with which his name is connected.

The announcement that he was relinquishing "complete management" of the corporation to a new group of executives who have become "heavily interested financially with us," was made by Durant at the annual meeting of the Durant Motor Sales organization.

He told the organization that if he is "to carry on another great but unpleasant task to which I am committed, my health must not be impaired."

ALL VENTURES INCLUDED

Amplifying his reference to the "great but unpleasant task," he said:

"A few years ago when Durant Motors, Inc., first started I conceived the idea that it would be a good plan for us to have many stockholders. Later I discovered that every form of misrepresentation had been used to induce people to buy stock in Durant Motors, Inc.

"My plan, if I am permitted and if I can have good fortune, is to reimburse every single, original stockholder of Durant Motors, Inc., with the price they paid for that stock, with interest.

"It is my purpose in life, if I am permitted, to re-imburse not only Durant Motors, Inc., stockholders but those of every other organization with which my name is connected—that means Star, Durant Motors Company of Indiana and Flint Motor Company."

AUTO PIONEER

Durant made it clear he was not retiring from business, but said he was delegating to the "ablest group of men I could find, the entire management of Durant Motors, Inc."

The business career of Durant, in which he has made and lost millions, has revolved around the automobile industry, in which he was a pioneer. At 24 he had been identified with carriage making and in 1904 started manufacturing the Buick car.

Illness Handicaps Homestead Police

Homestead's police force is severely handicapped because of illness, according to a report made at the municipal building last night. Night Capt. James Conley is ill along with five of the 17 patrolmen. Another patrolman is off duty because of a suspension.

PATRICIA PITT'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Pittsburghers Prefer South as Winter Playground

WITH the unceremonious wind blowing zone around corners and with the "slick" pavements vying with the toboggan slides of Lake Placid, it's not surprising, is it, that Pittsburgh folks find the warm rays of the sun act like a magnet to draw them to Palm Beach? I'm sure you've noticed how few of our society folks are attracted to the winter playgrounds of the North. Of course Pittsburgh is always represented at such resorts as Lake Placid, but the majority of the city's wanderers may be found down South in late January and February.

From now on the bulk of news about society folks will be tales of migrations to the southland. Of course now and then there'll be a wedding date or engagement announced and an occasional entertainment.

And while I'm speaking of dates being announced I wonder if you've heard of the latest addition to January weddings?

Luella Rinegart Marshall, daughter of the David Jones Marshalls, of Forbes street, was named Thursday, January 24, as the date of her marriage. Her engagement to George Challant Wennoll, son of Mrs. Delmont Jones Kennedy, of the Schenley Apartments, was announced, don't you remember, in November?

AND another engagement has been added to the long list of announcements made this month. The junior George Wittmers, of Oak Hill Farms, Willwood, have made known the engagement of their daughter, Henrietta Victoria Wittmer, to Thomas P. Trimble, Jr., son of Judge and Mrs. Thomas P. Trimble, of Fifth avenue.

* * *

HAVE you realized how popular Havana has become this season? Every day some hours of someone else who is bound Havanaward. The W. Edgar Reeds are planning to leave the middle of February for Havana. They'll be accompanied by Mr. Reed's sister, Mrs. Albert Schmid, of Paris. Mrs. Schmid come to Pittsburgh in the fall to attend the debut of the Reeds' daughter, Louise.

* * *

ALWAYS summer or winter, spring or fall, one may find Pittsburgh folks making brief sojourns in New York. Mrs. Scott A. McKeown, of the Schenley Apartments, and her two daughters, Sara Jane and Scottie, Jean McKeown, left last night for New York. They'll be there a week or ten days, I understand.

* * *

NOW is the time, too, for that long delayed Mediterranean cruise. Mrs. Charles J. Ramsburg and her daughter, Margaret Ramsburg, who came east last year, will sail from New York, I hear, January 29, on this trip. Before returning to the States in April, they expect to be in Paris several weeks.

* * *

THE marriage of Miss Grace Ethel Reid, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Denny Reid, of the South Hills, and Henry Allan Lyons, son of Mrs. Thomas Kagle, of Dormont, will be solemnized Wednesday morning at 8 o'clock in the Dormont Methodist Episcopal Church. Miss Evelyn Dorothy Fowler will be maid of honor and Thomas Kagle is to be his brother's best man. After an eastern trip Mr. and Mrs. Lyons will be at home in McDonald.

* * *

THE active and alumnae chapters of Theta Phi Alpha will hold a benefit bridge party next Saturday in the Roosevelt Hotel, the proceeds to be added to the Margaret Enright Memorial Fund, which awards each year a scholarship to a young woman in the University of Pittsburgh medical school. The scholarship was started in 1925 in memory of Margaret Enright, a member of the fraternity, who died while she was a pre-medical student at Pitt. The committee in charge of the benefit includes Miss Catherine Ross, general chairman; Miss Ruth Matteson, Miss Ruth Grusch, Miss Bernadette Connelly, Miss Mary Munsch and Miss Lois Barry.

* * *

MRS. MARY M'ELVAINE GEDDIS, of Northumberland street will entertain with a theater party at the Davis tomorrow night, followed by a supper in her home. There will be 15 guests.

* * *

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM L. GRAY, of North avenue, Blawnox, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Kathryn Margaret Gray, and Charles Nelson Flinn, of Sharpsburg, which was solemnized December 31 in Blawnox. After February 1, Mr. and Mrs. Flinn will be at home in Kittanning pike, Sharpsburg.

* * *

A CARD party will be held Monday night in the Garden Parlors, North Side, for the benefit of the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Fraternal Order of Police. Euchre, "500" and old maid will be played.

* * *

COURT EAST LIBERTY, Catholic Daughters of America, will hold a card party tomorrow afternoon in Oppenheim-Collins' auditorium. Euchre, "500" and old maid will be played.

Earl Mitchell was at the piano and added much to the thorough enjoyment of the delightful program.

THE FIRST NATIONAL SHOW
. . and the Mirror of the Automotive Industry . .

IN JANUARY of each year two great automobile shows are held—two gigantic displays that parade the newest developments of America's greatest industry before the motoring public. One, the New York Show, takes place in Grand Central Palace. The other, the Nation-wide, World-wide Show takes place in the pages of the Show Number of MoToR.

Bigger, better and more interesting than ever, the Show Number for this year again proves MoToR's dominant position in the automotive field. Crammed with 475 interesting pages and 600 vivid illustrations—selling for $1.25 a copy—it is a fitting introduction to what promises to be the greatest year the industry has ever known.

Throughout the world, MoToR is recognized as the barometer of the industry, authoritatively forecasting trends and developments in entire automotive field. Starting every year with the January Show Number and continuing with eleven important monthly issues, it maintains its position as leader in the industry of which it is an integral part.

As an advertising medium MoToR is unrivaled. Each month it is thoroughly read by business men in every branch of the automotive industry. Its large monthly circulation, approximating 55,000, is concentrated in the profitable urban market.

The basic policy of putting reader interest first has been responsible for MoToR's unparalleled growth. WHAT'S ON THE AIR: JIM HUGHES RETURNS TO RADIO

PROGRAM TO BE SHARED BY MUSIC AND COMEDY

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor.

SURPRISE!

Jim Hughes, who won the hearts of Pittsburgh fans through numerous appearances over KDKA a year ago, will come back to the radio theater tonight. Hughes couldn't resist the call of the ether. He will be heard in a short novelty sketch, "At the Party," over WCAE at 7 o'clock. He will be assisted by Emma Bishop.

It is a new type of program for the versatile Jim Hughes, but fans can expect to find him at his best.

"Don't Do That to the Poor Pussy Cat" is a comedy number on the Wrigley Review over KDKA at 9 o'clock. Smalle and Robertson, comedy team, will create the fun. Songs from "Rob Roy" will be sung on the Philco Hour at 9:30 p. m. while the Hudson-Essex Challengers appear in their second program at 10 o'clock.

"HUMORESQUE" WCAE

Dvorak's "Humoresque" will be offered as a violin solo on the Cities Service concert over WCAE at 8 o'clock. Other good numbers on this program are the Gavotte from "Mignon," four Indian love lyrics and "Sweet and Low."

Irish and "Darky" songs will be featured on the Enna Jettick program over WJAS at 6:45 o'clock. "Oh, Dem Golden Slippers" and "Way Down Upon the Swanee River" are striking selections.

Tom Murdoch, tenor, and Marie Beitler, contralto, will sing classical compositions at 7:30 p. m. and at 8 o'clock the Crystal Gazer will bring two youths together in love. Some good atmosphere will be provided in "Give Me the Moonlight," "In the Spring a Young Man's Fancy," "My Heart Stood Still" and "There's a Rainbow Round My Shoulder."

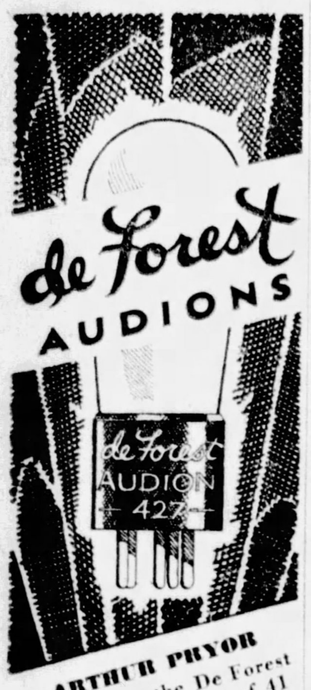
The Swanee River, girls' eyes and girls' names will be given a lot of attention in the Then and Now concert at 8:30 o'clock. Bob and Mary go to North Carolina, where they solve the problem of a young wife and her husband, 9 o'clock.

UNITED OPERA

"Lucia Di Lammermoor" will be produced by the United Opera Company at 10 o'clock.

The usual dance and popular orchestras will appear on KQV programs today. At 1 o'clock Kappel's Period will be given, followed by the Flotilla Club Revue at 11:30 p. m.

Paul V. McNutt, national commander of the American Legion, will speak on "The Cruiser Bill" tonight at 9 o'clock over WCAE, during the Sojourners Program. This feature will replace the "Evening in Paris."



ARTHUR PRYOR

now conducts the De Forest Audion Military Band of 41 pieces every Sunday evening. ¶ De Forest Audions are the perfected radio tubes made in the laboratories of Dr. Lee de Forest, "the father of Radio."

Tune in Sunday Evening 10:00 to 10:30 P. M. (E. S. T.) over the C. B. S. through Station WJAS.

"BUNK OR BUNCO."

The subtle distinction between the words "bunk" and "bunco" will be explained by "Uncle Bob" Sherwood. "Bunco" is reminiscent of gold bricks, he says, and of green goods selling the White House, the three-shell game and other circus pastimes. "Bunk" on the other hand, is a more innocent manner of getting money from customers and at the same time pleasing the persons who have done the paying. "Uncle Bob" promises many amusing anecdotes illustrative of this distinction.

Radio Stars Seek 'Atmosphere' at Sun-Telegraph

Do radio stars look for atmosphere when they are about to present a program they know little about?

The answer is "es."

The Strollers, a play group heard every Saturday night over WCAE has selected for presentation tomorrow night the newspaper story, "Copy." Most of the action in "copy" takes place in the composing room of a newspaper. And there isn't a single member of The Strollers who is a newspaperman.

So, to get the proper atmosphere, Miss Sweeney, director, has arranged to have The Strollers inspect the plant of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph tomorrow afternoon prior to the broadcast.

TWO ASLEEP IN AUTO HELD AS SUSPECTS

SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH

By HAVEY J. BOYLE

A FEW days ago (this for the benefit of that one person who does not read the column every day) there was a paragraph here about hospital orderlies, in which it was set forth that hospital orderlies seem unaware of the presence of nurses surrounding them. This has been misconstrued by a fair correspondent (a trained nurse) to be a reflection on nurses. She writes:

"Dear Friend: In reading your column the other evening I was very much hurt in learning the opinion you have of nurses. Do you realize before a nurse goes in training she must be a high school graduate and when she has finished training she has two years' college credits?

"Then you would infer to the public that she would be interested in an orderly. You, evidently, have never met in a social way any nurses. I have always been a reader of your column and I was sorry to find out your opinion of our profession. If ever you are so unfortunate as to be ill I hope you find an orderly to take care of you and not a nurse, as she might be too interested in the hospital orderlies to give you any attention.

"Hoping to hear from you in your Sidewalks of Pittsburgh, I remain,

"One Nurse Not Interested in Orderlies or Newspapermen,
"A PITTSBURGH NURSE."

You can see by this letter the ever-present danger that faces a writer. I said that hospital orderlies were not interested in nurses and by my correspondent this has been switched around to mean that hospital nurses were fond of orderlies. I want to correct this. So I'll say here I never did and never will believe the nurses are interested in orderlies. I believe I intimated that nurses might be interested in doctors and I'll stretch that to include patients and non-patients of the opposite sex, but there is nothing radical or revolutionary about that statement, surely. The same could be said truthfully of stenographers, salesgirls, cashiers and waitresses.

I don't like to disagree with a lady, but when my correspondent guesses I never have met nurses in a social way she is entirely wrong. I have met as many as two and when they learned I was a reporter they didn't turn up their noses either. True, they probably objected to the fact that reporters are not always fastidious about shaving and keeping their trousers creased, but both were broad-minded enough to overlook the fact that I was a so-called newspaperman.

AND some day someone ought to write a story of the nurse and the orderly. The story will tell how the orderly went about his work, never telling anyone that he was a first cousin of the late czar. The nurses all treated him indifferently and smiled sweetly on the young interne in the white coat—the one who wrings the ambulance bell. And one day all the nurses were pretty much surprised and amazed when a Russian countess, dressed, of course, in sables and decorated with diamonds, inquired at the hospital for Ivan Petrotoff. "He's an orderly," says the lady at the desk. "He may be an orderly here," says the countess, "but in Russia he was of the blood royal." And then some of the meanies among the nurses—won't they be sorry that they missed a chance to become Princess instead of just Doctor So and So's wife?

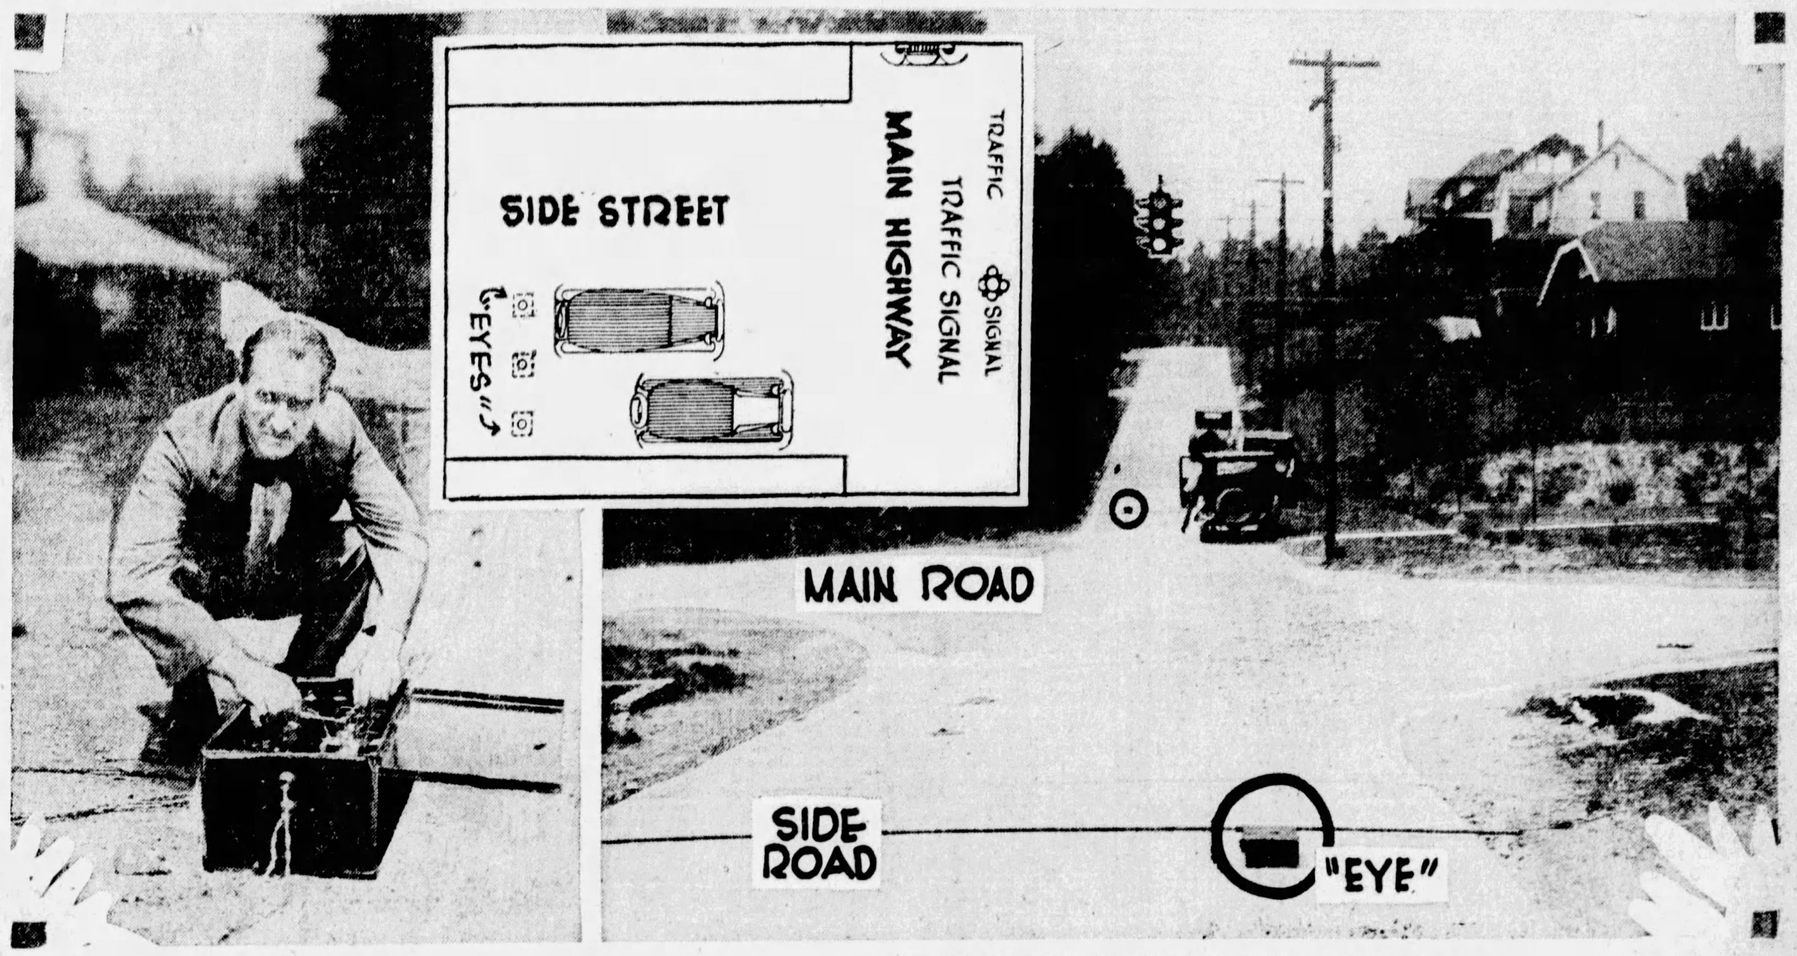
No, the correspondent is wrong about the column and nurses. Often, with a nurse handy I have pretended to have a headache just so the nurse would try to determine from symptoms whether I had a mastoid, high blood pressure, or just tonsils. Always, I've been pleasant with them.

And in conclusion I'd like to say that in New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, Frisco and Los Angeles the column has seen many nurses, but somehow none ever seemed to be as pleasant, as charming, as intelligent as our own Pittsburgh nurses.

Some people will say: "Oh, that's just the boloney," but you must remember that in every age there have been skeptics and cynics.

How "Mechanical Eye" Directed Auto Traffic in Tests Made Here



DR. PHILLIPS THOMAS

Dr. Phillips Thomas, research engineer, Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, who has taken the "eye" of the mechanical man and set it to directing traffic.

PITTSBURGH TEST OF "ELECTRICAL EYE" TO DIRECT TRAFFIC

Testing the "electrical eye" at street intersection in Forest Hills, here. An auto approaching a main road and properly driven to the right must cast a shadow over one of three photo-electric cells, imbedded in the road, which change the traffic light only long enough to permit a crossing. Otherwise the right-of-way always is given the main highway.

CHARGE DRIVER PUT GIRL OUT OF AUTO

George E. Lorch, 53, 5626 Aylesboro avenue, will get a hearing in Traffic Court tomorrow on two charges. One for reckless driving and the other for violating the automobile laws as a result of striking a girl with his automobile, placing her in the car, driving a short distance and then putting her out of the machine, South Side police say.

According to police records, Miss Lillian Freedline, 20, 2339 Sidney street, was struck by an automobile at Carson and Brady streets late Wednesday night. The driver picked her up, placed her in his automobile, drove to South Twenty-third and Sidney streets, put her out of the machine and drove away. The girl was attended by a nearby doctor for bruises of the body and mouth.

About two hours later, police say, Mr. Lorch came into the station house and was placed under arrest by Motorcycle Patrolman Terry McCann.

Two Unhappy Wives File Divorce Libels

Myrtle J. Neubrand, 283 Hensel street, Wilkinsburg, who claims she suffered indignities at the hands of her husband, Frederick Neubrand, has filed a libel in divorce in Common Pleas Court, charging him with cruel and barbarous treatment. The couple were married in 1912 and separated last year.

TWO SLEEPING IN AUTO HELD BY POLICE

Harry Manning, 25, of 303 Pike street, and Leonard Preston, 26, of 1331 Bluff street, arrested by Emergency Patrolmen Joseph Hickey and Louis Foster, of the South Side Police Station yesterday, will get a hearing in Traffic Court this afternoon.

According to the arresting officers, Manning and Preston were found sleeping in a high powered touring car at South Eighteenth and Sidney streets. When questioned, according to the police, they pretended being drunk and could not satisfy the officers why the license plates on the automobile had been switched from a roadster owned by Preston. Other questions asked them were not satisfactorily answered, which resulted in their arrest on a charge of being suspicious persons.

It was later revealed, police say, that Manning was recently released from Western Penitentiary.

Mifflin Twp. Widow Left $60,000 Estate

The will of Samuel Lewis, of Mifflin Township, probated yesterday, leaves the income of a $60,000 estate to his wife during her life. At her death the estate goes to their seven children. The testator directs that these sums be set aside, out of the estate, to educate four minor children: For William, $5,000; Rose, $5,000; Katie, $3,000, and Leo, $2,000. The wife is named executor.

COUNCIL GIVES APPROVAL TO GOLDSTROM BOARDWALK

Council has requested the department of public works to build a boardwalk on Goldstrom avenue and Rutherford avenue to Banksville avenue.

In order to avoid a repetition of a deficit in the boardwalk account as occurred last year, the department was instructed by Council not to proceed with any new construction of boardwalks and steps until ordered by Council.

The department was asked to submit an itemized schedule showing the estimated cost of labor and material for new boardwalks and steps and for replacements to be financed with funds from 1929 appropriations.

A report was also requested on the items of walks and steps that have been eliminated through street paving projects.

Reward to Be Given For Slayer of Dog

A search is being made in the South Hills section for the persons who shot a small dog owned by Attorney John B. Fortunato, 1305 Methyl street, Beechview, yesterday. An investigation has been started to learn the identity of the shooter and a reward will be offered for his arrest, it was said.

The bonds, approved by Mt. Lebanon's voters at the recent general election, are grouped as follows: $175,000 for a new municipal building to house the police and fire departments and the township's general offices; $50,000 for storm sewers, and $25,000 to be divided between new traffic lighting system and floating indebtedness. This was the announcement made by Elijah Gray, township manager.

Pastor Announces Series of Sermons

A double series of morning and evening sermons is announced by the Rev. Fred F. Shields, pastor of the Bellevue Baptist Church. Next Sunday morning he will preach on "What Jesus Says About God," the first of a series on "What Jesus Says." At night his topic will be "Condemned by His Own Conscience," the second of a series on the general theme, "Ancient Pictures in a Modern Frame."

TALKING ROBOT VIES WITH EYE FOR TRAFFIC

The robot is at work in Pittsburgh—in the laboratory of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company.

Not only have engineers there worked out a mechanical man who will "talk," but recently Dr. Phillips Thomas, research engineer, tested out an apparatus which will make "safe and sane" travel possible—even though you're on a cross street from main arteries of traffic.

In Forest Hills, Dr. Thomas placed an "electrical eye" at a point where a side-street crossed a boulevard. The driver of an automobile passed over a series of photo-electric cells, imbedded in the road. The shadow caused the cells to turn a switch which changed the crossing light on the main boulevard from green to yellow and then to red. The light stayed red on the boulevard until the driver from the cross-street had both turned into the boulevard and, on another trial, crossed it. Then it flashed green again.

Widow Is Left Half of Estate

Frederick H. Espenschade, of 608 Pressley street, North Side, by his will probated yesterday, leaves half of a $10,000 estate to his wife, Ella, and $3,000 to his daughter, Alma. The remainder is left in trust; two-thirds of the income to go to his sister, Mary, and one-third to his brother, Ralph. At their death the principal goes to his wife and daughter equally. He leaves $500 to the Ladies' Aid Society of the Presbyterian Church at Mifflintown, Pa. The daughter is appointed executor.

J. Allen, pastor of the Sandusky Street Baptist Church, is chairman of the committee in charge. The Rev. Edward Bleakney, pastor of Mt. Lebanon Baptist Church, will direct the campaign.

Mirror Gags

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.

I see where Mr. Coolidge keeps conferring with Mr. Hoover. Looks like he might get in the cabinet himself. Mr. Kellogg wants to get out after his treaty is signed. So why not let Mr. Coolidge go Secretary of State and keep the same old gang?

That Postmaster General has been a great booster for aviation, so keep him.

And if he wants Bill Donovan in there as Attorney General, I hope there won't be any gathering or united bunch that will try and tell Mr. Hoover not to appoint him. We have had enough of that for one year.

Yours, WILL.

COLD

PREVENT a cold by rinsing the hands with Listerine before each meal? Sounds strange doesn't it? Not when you know the facts, however.

During the day your hands accumulate germs. Ordinary washing with soap and water doesn't destroy them. So, carried to the mouth on food, they develop, attacking the mucous membrane. A cold or sore throat or both frequently follows.

Full strength Listerine, is powerful against germs—kills most varieties in 15 seconds. Therefore its use on the hands before each meal is simply another wise precaution against colds and sore throat. Mothers handling children's food should particularly bear this in mind. Write for our great free book, "Personal Hygiene." Address Dept. S. 59, Lambert Pharmacal Co., St. Louis, Mo., U. S. A.

And for

Sore Throat

Listerine built its reputation on its ability to quickly check sore throat which is also caused by germs. At the first symptom of trouble, gargle with it full strength. Repeat the treatment frequently.

TAKE SALTS IF STOMACH ISN'T ACTING RIGHT

Undigested food delayed in the stomach decays, or rather ferments, the same as food left in the open air, says a noted authority. He also tells us that Indigestion is caused by Hyperacidity, meaning there is an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach which prevents complete digestion and starts food fermentation. Thus everything eaten sours in the stomach much like garbage sours in a can, forming acrid fluids and gases which inflate the stomach like a toy balloon. Then we feel a heavy, lumpy misery in the chest; we belch up gas; we eructate sour food or have heartburn, flatulence, water-brash or nausea.

He tells us to lay aside all digestive aids and instead get from any pharmacy four ounces of Jad Salts and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and drink it while it is effervescing, and furthermore, to continue this for a week. While relief often follows the first dose, it is important to help neutralize the acidity, remove the gas-making mass, start the liver, stimulate the kidneys and thus promote a free flow of pure digestive juices.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and sodium phosphate. This harmless salts is used for many stomach disorders with excellent results.

Only a handful of people came to Carnegie Music Hall last night to hear Lucie Stern in piano recital, but they were amply repaid with some very beautiful playing. This pianist is but 15 years old, was a child prodigy in Berlin, and seems to be developing normally into an exceptional musician.

The program was ambitious enough for a much more experienced player, but this young lady need make no apologies for any of her interpretations. Where she falls short, it is the fault of youth.

In the Bach she avoided the snarl in all the recitative of the fantasy, and played with a mellowness of tone that distracted not a particle from the clarity. In the fugue the design was occasionally lost, and that can possibly be laid to her teacher, Josef Hofmann, who in his recent Pittsburgh recital toyed likewise with tone effects and forgot the importance of the unity of his composition.

In Schumann's variations there was much to be praised in the way of nuance, though extreme effects in the finale again drew it out to tiresome length. The Chopin throughout was marked by lovely singing tone, at times by most dainty scale passages, a total absence of sentimentality, and, in the Polonaise, by a breadth not often attained by players with much broader shoulders.

The entire recital was notable for the extreme modesty of this very gifted young pianist, who doubtless possesses a great talent.

Chicken in Jelly.
Baked Potatoes. Mashed Turnips.
Cottage Cheese and Asparagus Salad.
Marshmallow Fruit Mold.
Ginger Ale. New Year Cakes.
Demi-Tasse.

WE'LL have to start this dinner a-cooking today, for chicken in jelly takes just a little more attention that the usual Sunday dish. Singe a chicken—I'd choose about a four-pounder—cut it in pieces and wash it thoroughly. Put in a saucepan, add a sliced onion and a stalk of celery cut in pieces, cover with boiling water and reduce the heat to a minimum.

The chicken should cook below boiling point until the meat is so tender it falls from the bones. Add a teaspoon of salt during the latter part of the cooking. Take the pieces of chicken out of the liquid, separate meat from skin and bones, put the bones again in the liquid and boil till the liquid is reduced one-half.

Strain, and when cool put in refrigerator over night to allow the fat to solidify on the top. Cover the chicken meat with waxed paper and put that in the refrigerator, too.

NEXT morning, after removing fat from the chicken jelly, place it in a saucepan with 10 peppercorns, ⅛ teaspoon mace, 4 cloves, 1 egg shell, 1 egg white, and salt and pepper to taste. Bring to a boil, then reduce heat and cook slowly 20 minutes.

Add a tablespoon of gelatine soaked in a quarter cup cold water and stir thoroughly. Then strain through an old linen napkin. Put a half-inch layer of liquid in a three-pint mold, and put in the icebox to harden.

When hardened, add the chicken, cut in long thin slivers, laying them all in the same direction. Pour over the remaining liquid and return to the icebox to harden. When ready to serve dip mold in hot water and invert immediately on a platter. Garnish with water-

I HAVE barely room to tell you how to make the salad. Drain a can of asparagus tips and arrange on lettuce leaves. And here endeth the Sunday dinner.

HERE'S Friday, and a most appropriate day to talk about fish. How often do you serve fish in your home? It is a very valuable food, you know, and just as nourishing and appetizing on Tuesdays and Thursdays as it is on Fridays.

You need the iodine and the iron that exist in fish, as well as the proteins and fats. Phosphorus is particularly to be found in flounder, halibut, herring and mackerel—and phosphorus is of decided value in nutrition.

Let me give you some tested fish recipes—and then serve fish more often! It's good for you!

FRIED SMELTS—Clean medium-sized smelts, leaving on heads and tails. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Dip in flour, eggs and fine bread crumbs, and fry in deep, hot cooking oil five minutes until brown. Do not cook too fast, so that the fish may cook through. Arrange on a hot platter and garnish with lemon and parsley. Smelts are the delight of epicures and make a most delicious entree.

* * *

SHRIMPS—To three quarts of boiling water add three teaspoons of salt; bring to a boil and, after washing the shrimp, put them in the kettle of rapidly boiling water. Turn down the heat, so that they simmer, or cook slowly, for 20 minutes. Strain from the water and cool. Remove the outer shell, which has turned pink. Chill quickly and then you may prepare the shrimp in any one of several choice ways—as a cocktail, a salad or creamed.

PLANKED FISH—Scrape a fish to remove the scales, then remove the head, tail and backbone. Wipe with wet cheesecloth, sprinkle with one teaspoon salt, pepper and brush with olive oil. Lay the fish on a hot oiled plank, skin side down. Now with a pastry tube and bag make a border of mashed potatoes around the plank. Between the fish and potatoes lay three or four tomatoes, peeled and cut in halves. Remove the stem and seeds from two small sweet green peppers, chop them fine, add a slice of onion chopped fine, and a half teaspoon of salt. Pile on more peeled and sliced tomatoes, put butter in small pieces over the fish and bake for about 10 minutes, or until the potatoes are browned. Remove the plank from the oven, sprinkle the fish generously with lemon juice and garnish with sliced lemon and parsley.

BOSTON BROWN BREAD—Cream together one cup of sugar, two eggs, and one-half teaspoon of salt. Add two-thirds cup of dark molasses, a cup of sour milk, a teaspoon of baking soda, one and one-half cups of graham flour, and one and one-half cups of white flour. Finally add a cup of raisins and a cup of walnuts. Bake in a moderate oven for from an hour and a quarter to an hour and a half. This makes an especially nice luncheon dessert, when topped with whipped cream.

* * *

SCOTCH BROTH — Boil four pounds of lean mutton in four quarts of water. Stir into it half a pound of barley. Keep it well mixed until the water boils and skim the surface carefully while the broth is simmering. Skim it just as fast as the scum arises. Cut up a couple of carrots, a turnip and an onion; add these with a quart of greenpeas, a few sprigs of parsley and a dessert-spoonful of pepper and salt mixed. The vegetables should not be allowed to boil a longer time than is required to cook them.

MARMALADE—Slice 6 grapefruit, 8 oranges and 6 lemons very, very, thin, removing the pits. Put in a deep bowl and cover with cold water, letting it stand 36 hours. Then measure fruit and juice by the cupful. Cook two hours, then add a cup of sugar for every cup of fruit and juice. Cook very slowly for two hours more. Then put in glasses and seal.

* * *

POTATO DUMPLINGS—Into a large mixing bowl grate about 10 medium sized cold boiled potatoes, several slices of bread; add ¾ cup white flour, 1 teaspoonful salt, 2 eggs and a pinch of nutmeg. Now in a skillet put a tablespoon butter to melt, add 2 teaspoons finely cut onion and 1 large slice bread cut in small squares. Saute, and add to the potato mixture. Mix with hands, thoroughly. Roll into small balls with flour. Have the vegetable soup at the boiling point; lay in the dumplings; when they rise to the top, they are cooked through. Take out with a straining spoon and put on a platter, or serve with the soup. Left-overs are delicious fried in butter.

HUMPHREYS LAUGHS AT TEX'S OFFER

SOME unofficial baseball dope that has appeared in print, following the recent publication of the National League batting averages for 1928, credits Paul Waner, the larruping right fielder of the Pittsburgh club, with the hanging-up of a new record for number of two-base hits made in one season in the older major circuit. Paul cracked out 50 doubles last year, and this is announced as being the highest total ever reached by a National League batsman in a single campaign, giving Waner the all-time championship of the parent loop for hits of that length in addition to the kindred honors that he won while playing for San Francisco in 1925, when he broke all Pacific Coast League records by making 75 two-baggers.

Paul Waner

But a dive into the official statistics of the bygone reveals that the slugging Pirate did not establish a new National League mark. In fact, he fell six doubles short of the real record, which is 56, set by the late Ed Delehanty while a member of the Phillies under the management of Bill Shettsline in 1899. Those were the days when long drives were called "Delehanty bunts." There is no telling what sort of figure Del would have contributed to the books if he had been privileged to hit against the lively ball now in use.

HOWEVER, Waner cannot be denied the distinction of having made more two-baggers in a season than any other player since Delehanty's record year. None of the league's leading sluggers in the meantime succeeded in reaching Paul's total of 50. The closest approach was 46, made by Rogers Hornsby in 1922, while with the Cardinals, and duplicated by Riggs Stephenson, of the Cubs, in 1927.

The American League record for two-base hits in a year is 64, set by George Burns while with Cleveland in 1926. The best lifetime marks in the majors are held by Tris Speaker and our own Honus Wagner. Speaker added 23 more doubles to his total last year in his final season as a big league player, boosting his record to 793 for 23 campaigns in the American League. In 21 years in the National League, Wagner hit for half the circuit 618 times.

CHARLES F. ADAMS, who has figured prominently in the unsavory political mess in Boston in his capacity as vice president of the Hub's National League Baseball Club, has also turned things upside down as boss of the hockey team in that city by making more changes than any other club owner in the ice world.

Charles F. Adams

According to Alfred Dayton, the Boston club has used or tried out no fewer than 100 players since the professional ice game was introduced there five years ago.

DURING the first three years 70 stick wielders passed through the Boston gristmill, and in the last two seasons 30 others have been experimented with by Manager Art Ross in his efforts to get the strongest team possible. Of the original crew that invaded the Hub, only one player remains, the lone surviving shater being Lionel Hitchman, defense man. Just two years ago the squad was made up of Hitchman, Sprague Cleghorn, Charley Stewart, Eddie Shore, Jim Herberts, Duke Keats, Carson Cooper, Percy Galbraith, Harry Oliver, Archie Briden, Charley Cahill, Hugo Harrington, Bill Stuart and Bill Couto. Of that array, only Shore, Hitchman, Gailbraith and Oliver remain, Ross having taken on no fewer than eight new men. In the goal-keeping department alone the club has used four men in four seasons. Truly a league record for shifting.

ONE of Boston's latest ice acquisitions whose work will be watched with considerable interest throughout the league is George Owen, former star athlete at Harvard. Owen did not shine with any particular brilliance in his first professional game against Toronto Tuesday night, but he is confident of coming through later.

"Professional hockey is much faster than the amateur game," he said. "I always knew that, but I never realized before the great width of the margin. The greatest difference appears to be in the speed the opposing forwards use in coming at you. Amateurs always slow up when they hit the defense men, but the professionals seem to increase their speed as they crash into the opposition. I am sure I'll be able to play better than I did in my first game. I was a bit green but that will wear off.

WILLIE HOPPE is not willing to admit that the loss of the prominent position he formerly held in balk-line billiards is due to a going back on his own part. He does not believe that his defeats in recent years were suffered because he was unable to play as well as formerly.

Willie Hoppe

"I don't believe that I have gone back," Hoppe declared. "In fact, I am certain that I am better today than I was years ago, when I had an unbroken string of 13 straight championship victories to my credit.

"THE explanation is that my opponents have improved," Willie continued. "That is the reason why the matches of today are so close. Schaefer, Horemans, Cochran and Hagenlacher are billiardists of the highest grade. They understand the game thoroughly. They are masters of it. There is not much to choose between any two of us. Any one of the players I have named is apt to average 100 points in a game at any time. That means practically perfect billiards. When I play against any of them and am not at my best, if I make the slightest error I am likely to be defeated. And the same thing applies in my favor. Each man has learned the technique so well that he gains a victory on the errors of his opponent.

BOTH of the fighters who figured in a recent Queensberry debate that caused a big upset in the lightweight championship reckoning will be seen in action again tonight. Jimmy McLarnin is to meet Joe Glick in New York, and Ray Miller, who stopped McLarnin, will encounter Tommy Grogan in Detroit.

For McLarnin, in particular, much depends upon tonight's showing. His defeats at the hands of Sammy Mandell and Miller put a damper on his championship hopes, but if he can win over Glick, who gained a decision over Baby Joe Gans not long ago, he will be right back in the title running. And it will not be surprising if he does

DARRAGH GETS ONLY TALLY FOR BUCS

DETROIT, Jan. 11.—The Pittsburgh Pirates of the ice made a disastrous one night stand in this city last night, taking a 4-to-1 clubbing at the hands of the Cougars in a National Professional Hockey League contest. A crowd of about 6,000 watched the locals score their decisive triumph over the Pittsburghers.

The losers might have been shut out had it not been for Darragh's goal in the final period. He took the puck on a pass from Hib Milks close to the net and slipped it past the Cougar goalie.

Detroit tallied after four minutes of the opening period had passed into history. Brydge obtained possession of the disc on a rebound shot from the stick of Cooper and flicked it into the net from close in for the first tally. He later saved a tie when he hooked the puck from near the net after Cotton, Tex Wilde and McCaffrey had staged a threatening sortie.

SECOND PERIOD SCORELESS

During the second period, both teams played fine defensive hockey, Cotton broke through the Detroit defense pair, Brydge and Noble, three times during this period, but was stopped from scoring by the clever work of goal tender Dolson. For almost a minute during this period, the Buccos were opposed by only three Detroit players, including Dolson, but were unable to take advantage of the adverse local situation.

As the final stanza opened, the Cougars put on a brave rally, which resulted in Cooper's sending drive low and slipping the puck past Miller for the second Detroit goal. Lewis took a pass from Aurie for a third tally and Connors banged home the final point, taking a neat pass from Hay and poking the puck past Miller.

Darragh's goal was scored with a bare two minutes of play left.

The lineup:

Pittsburgh—1.		Detroit—4.
Miller	G	Dolson
MacKinnon	L. D.	Brydge
Smith	R. D.	Noble
Frederickson	C	Lewis
Milks	R. W.	Cooper
Darragh	L. W.	Hay

Detroit spares: Traub, Aurie, Herberts. Pittsburgh spares—Connors, Brophy, Holway, Drury, Cotton, White, McCaffrey, McCurry. Officials—Dussault and March. First period—Scoring: Detroit, Brydge, 4:20. Penalties—MacKinnon, Frederickson, Cooper. Second period—No scoring. Penalties—Smith, Connors, Lewis (5 minutes), Noble, Hay. Third period—Scoring: Detroit, Cooper, 1:26; Detroit, Lewis (Aurie), 16:22; Detroit, Connors (Hay), 16:23; Pittsburgh, Darragh (Milks), 18:45. Penalties—Brydge, Holway, Connors.

HAWKS TIE MAROONS

CHICAGO, Jan. 11.—(AP.)—The lightweight Chicago Blackhawks went at top speed to gain a 1 to 1 tie with the Montreal Maroons in a National League hockey game here last night. Only spectacular goal tending by Chuck Gardiner, Blackhawk goalie in the overtime period, saved the Hawks from losing.

RANGERS ROUT SENATORS

OTTAWA, Jan. 11.—(AP.)—The New York Rangers, leaders of the American section of the National Hockey League, gave the Ottawa Senators a terrific trouncing here last night, 9 goals to 3. It was one of the worst defeats an Ottawa team has suffered in years.

BRUINS SCORE WIN

MONTREAL, Jan. 11.—(AP.)—The Boston Bruins won their second victory on Montreal ice, defeating Les Canadiens, 4 to 2, here last night. The Bruins had to overcome a two-goal lead the Canadiens obtained in less than two minutes of play on successful shots by Burke and Mantha.

GOALIE CHABOT INJURED

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—(AP.)—The New York Americans held their place at the top of the Canadian section of the National Hockey League by turning back Toronto, 2 to 0, in a slow game last night. An injury to Goalie Lorne Chabot near the end of the first cost Toronto its chance of victory. Chabot was forced from the game with a cut over his right eye that required two stitches to close.

SHARKEY'S BOUT WITH STRIBLING OFF, BELIEF

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—(AP.)—Two of the strongest institutions in the boxing world, Jack Dempsey and the Madison Square Garden Corporation, are struggling vainly with problems willed them by the late Tex Rickard.

Out of it all has come the very definite probability that there will be no heavyweight match between Jack Sharkey and Young Stribling in Miami Beach under the direction of Rickard's successors. Any chance that Dempsey would step into the Garden to take over the post left vacant by the death of his firm friend and advisor, has died.

The old Manassa Mauler promised a definite decision yesterday on the comeback campaign for the heavyweight championship Rickard had planned for him. But when the time came Dempsey could say only that he did not know; that he was too busy caring for the welfare of the promotor's widow and child to think of his own affairs, that he must wind up the business ventures he and Rickard had together before making any decision.

MAYBERRY WINS OVER ADELMAN

Howard Mayberry was too clever a puncher for Davy Adelman, of Philadelphia, last night and was awarded the judges' decision at the end of the 10-round main bout at the Palisades in McKeesport.

The bout, long looked forward to by district boxing fans, failed to produce the fireworks that were expected, but was an interesting affair from gong to gong. Adelman failed to show his usual class against the Donora star.

In the semi-final of six rounds, Phil Scello, of McKeesport, forced the going from the very start and won the verdict over Young Guido, of Sharon.

In the second bout, Johnny Bucker, Pittsburgh, knocked out Luther Lash, of New Kensington, in the second round of what was to have been a six-round affair. Johnny Brown, of Pittsburgh, whipped Jack McCarthy, of the North Side, in the six-round opener.

FORMER CAPTAIN DEAD

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., Jan. 11.—Arthur Abrahams, aged 18 years, former captain of the Beaver Falls High School track team, died at his home here yesterday. He was a freshman at Geneva College.

My Pal, TEX RICKARD

By JACK DEMPSEY,
Former Heavyweight Champion of the World.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—Tex Rickard changed his mind about my size after I won the championship from the giant Willard at Toledo in 1919.

Before that fight he believed that no one in the world was large enough to knock out the champion. He thought Willard's powerful physique would withstand the blows of anyone then in the ring.

Jack Dempsey.

But immediately after that nerve-wracking three round battle Rickard hurried to my room in the Secor Hotel, where they rushed me as I came from the ring.

"Well, you did it son," Rickard beamed as he dashed into the room and belted me several hearty whacks on the back. He was as happy and enthusiastic as any Tenth avenue kid at his Christmas tree parties in the Garden.

"You sure are the best fighter I ever saw," he went on. "Imagine a little fellow like you knocking a big man like that around the ring. You've got a great future in this fight business. Just take care of yourself and we'll have plenty of work for you."

Began Warm Friendship.

Those were golden words to me coming from the lips of Tex. They warmed the cockles of my heart and were the beginning of the long friendship and ardent affection I was to have for Tex, now so tragically ended by his passing.

"Thanks, Tex," I said, "I'll be with you strong."

Time proved that he carried out this promise. He gave me the work and I was there to tackle it.

This brings up an outstanding factor in the makeup of Tex. He had more foresight than anyone I ever knew. He was uncanny. He could see years ahead. He made little ideas become the biggest shows in the world that drew the cream of society as well as politics and the professions to the ringside at great fights. Rickard would take a chance because he always was willing to stake his judgment against any obstacle.

Tex began planning my fight with Georges Carpentier long before it appeared that it would ever materialize. He had my sanction for the contest. But it was difficult for Tex to get in touch with the Frenchman.

Then two men, an American and an Englishman went to Europe and signed up Carpentier. It was their part of the job of promoting the big contest. They were to be Rickard's European representatives and were to share in the big fight as partners.

When Carpentier and I got together with the promoters to discuss terms and dates these two men were dumbfounded at the guaranteed purses demanded by the boxers. Carpentier wanted $200,000 and I was asking $300,000.

Demand Stunned Promoters

These two new associates of Rickard's were staggered. They felt that both fighters should be obtained for the sum Carpentier demanded. Our demands were unheard of purses at that time.

There was the usual heated conference that got nowhere. Then, when affairs were hopelessly muddled, Rickard arose and declared: "I'll tak the fight myself. You fellows can back on out. It's all right with me. I'll stage the fight myself."

He did and it was the first $1,000,000 fight.

The first so-called "Battle of the Century." The contest was held in Boyles' Thirty Acres in New Jersey and the gate amounted to $1,600,000. A printed roar sounded through the sports world that was like the Concord shot heard around the world. Only Tex's genius as a promoter and his great knowledge and understanding of human nature enabled this feat to be accomplished. It was practically a miracle in the history of sport.

And I was among the first to shake the hand of Tex in congratulation. And as always—in success or getting the tough breaks—Tex's face broke into the smile that was part of his nature. With the tiny lines wrinkling at the corners of his eyes and the cigar tipped at a higher angle.

Jess Willard.

"Thanks, Jack," he said in his southern drawl, "but you really did the big job."

Could anyone fail to be strong for a man like that?

DUKES TO PLAY TITANS IN CONFERENCE

By JESS CARVER.

TONIGHT'S college basketball affair, if one may steal a word or two of description from M. Poiret, is a stunning creation of color and importance. At that, there is more to tonight's court card than there is to many of Kid Poiret's masterpieces.

The piece de resistance of the program is the Duquesne-Westminster Conference clash at New Wilmington, Pa. In the city, it is the Pitt-Tech setto billed for the Stadium Pavilion, the first game of the annual three-game series between the Oakland rivals, carrying with it whatever piece of mind and glory that may be found in the championship of Oakland. They used to call it the city championship series, until the Dukes came along and developed basketball teams that could have beaten Pitt and Tech on the same night. Chick Davies and Bill Campbell were responsible for that.

PANTHERS FAVORED

Pitt, victorious in 21 consecutive games last year, acknowledged by most folks to be the national champions, walloped the Tartans hip and thigh last season and are prime favorites to repeat this year. Tech dropped 11 straight in 1928 and so far, in '29, have won and lost two.

The Dukes, shorn of their Conference title which they wore with such aplomb for three years by the Titans during last year's hectic campaign, will hardly enter tonight's contest at New Wilmington favorites. The U. P.'s seemingly are as powerful this year as last, while the Dukes, while they look to be a trifle stronger than in 1928, are not expected to upset John Lawther's fast-stepping United Presbyterians in this first meeting.

In a preliminary game to the Stadium feature, the Pitt and Tech freshmen fives will clash, beginning at 7:15 p. m., or whenever the officials get there. They'll be on hand about that time, so don't be late.

JACKETS MEET GROVERS

The third college encounter of the night in this district will bring together Bob Thorn's Grove City Crimsons and Frank Wolf's Yellow Jackets, of Waynesburg. Both clubs have met up with Old Man Defeat before, the Grovers succumbing to the fire and dash of Westminster and the Jackets having been well pressed by Pitt here last Tuesday night. Neither will be shocked by defeat tonight. Waynesburg won one important game, beating Carnegie Tech in the Plaid's opening contest of the year one week ago.

TEX As He Was Known to TAD

How Tex Looked and What He Said

By TAD, Famous Cartoonist and Sports Writer.

"SHOW him an egg and he immediately sees feathers," said Sam Johnson, describing a friend to Boswell.

That was Tex Rickard all over. Yes, that was Tex to a T. There never was a more optimistic man.

Everything looked like a big success to him.

He had no real intimates in the sporting world. He had his likes and his dislikes, but there was no one man who knew his inner thoughts. He kept those to himself.

He liked to sit back in his chair, puff on a big fat cigar, make a remark or two about some future event, smile and twinkle his eyes and watch your face for your reaction. He loved to hear what YOU thought about his ideas. You could always get his ear. He was a good listener. He seldom argued. If you thought off his line he'd often yes you, but sometimes gave his opinion and the matter seemed to be definitely settled. That is, Tex made you think it was already settled.

When Tex left New York for the Toledo fight, this writer happened to be on the same train. We sat together in Rickard's stateroom talking about the big fight (Dempsey-Willard).

Toledo Fight a Bust

"I'll clean up a million dollars with this fight," piped Tex in his fast, snappy way, biting his cigar as he chirped.

"Oh," piped the writer, "not a MILLION."

"Yes, I will," snapped back Tex through his thin lips, which snapped shut much after the fashion of one of Dickens' characters whose kisser was described as "like a mouse trap."

"I'll clean up a million and mebbe more. I have at least six big cities to draw from right there at Toledo, and New York, Philadelphia and Boston are not far off. A million sure."

Tex felt sure of his guess until the night before the fight. The advance sale was not up to expectations and his only hope was a last rush. Meeting Jim Coffroth, the San Francisco promoter, in the lobby of the Hotel Secor that night, the worried Rickard said:

"Jimmy, how do you figure the last-hour rush? Do you ever give it much importance?"

Coffroth, who had been in the same predicament as Tex found himself, sympathized as best he could.

"Yes, Tex," he piped, "very often the last-minute rush has saved a show for me. The weather, the betting, the arguments often make a bout big at the last minute."

Tex left with a worried expression on his face. His show was not a howling success. His grand arena was but one-third full on the day of the fight. He made money, but not a million.

Rickard's Wisecracks

Tex was noted for a few sayings. Among them were:

"I never met a dishonest man until I was 40 years of age."
"Three drinks a day is enough for any man."
"I keep my nerves in shape by eating sliced tomatoes."
"Always pay your I. O. U's."
"I can be touched, but I won't be HELD UP."

Jeffries was his ideal heavyweight.

"The night that Jim Jeffries stepped down from the ring in Mechanic's Pavillion, in 'Frisco, after beating Jack Monroe, he could have licked any man on God's green earth," said Tex to the writer one night at the Biltmore, where we were putting on the feed bag.

There were other big men that Tex liked, but Jim Jeffries was his idol. He watched Jeff take that lacing from Jack Johnson at Reno, but made excuses for the big boilermaker after the show. The Jeff that he looked at as a loser didn't seem to be the Jeff he watched as a WINNER. Most of our idols are like that.

They seem to lack something when they meet their masters.

Tex never boasted about himself. Rickard got a terrific kick out of his successful ventures, but he seldom boasted. He giggled and giggled over his good fortune, but never once has the writer heard him chuck the swell, as we say, at the Ritz. At Reno, his first big

ROCCO IN GARDEN GO

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—(AP.)—Knute Hansen, more melancholy than ever since his knockout defeat at the hands of K. O. Christner, has been signed to meet Emmett Rocco, Ellwood City (Pa.) heavyweight, in the semi-final to the Christner-Jack Sharkey match in Madison Square Garden, January 25.

JACKETS VS. SHADYSIDE

SHADYSIDE ACADEMY'S hockey team and the Pittsburgh Yellow Jackets will battle in a West Penn Amateur Hockey League contest on the Garden ice tonight. The Yellow Jackets are led by Roy D. HYATT GENIUS AMONG PASSERS

By HARRY KECK, Sports Editor.

WHEN better all-round basketball players than Charley Hyatt, the Pitt star, are developed, I want to see them.

Here is a fellow who is nothing short of a genius. In the game with Waynesburg College a few nights ago, he was handicapped by a trick ankle, and had to favor it, yet there was not a moment of the time he was in the game that he was not the best man of the floor. His generalship, maneuvering, feinting, passing and shooting were the best I ever have seen in a college basketball player—and close followers of the team who have seen him in action in most of his games tell me he had an off-night.

Hyatt has an uncanny knack of doing just the right thing and being in the right spot at the right moment. As Referee Zip Brickley put it after the game, here is a fellow who is a positive marvel. In almost every scrimmage he emerged with the ball and either took it down the floor for a close-in shot or started it on its way there, via the passing route, and was on hand when it arrived to loop it in for an easy goal. A few times he essayed long shots and sank the ball into the basket as neatly as if he had been right on top of it. He has a "feel" of the floor such as is given to few players and would be an ace in any company.

Charley did not start the Waynesburg game and for the first few minutes it was a close affair. Then he was sent in and things began to hum. At the half Pitt was leading, 15-7, and it finally developed into a rout, Pitt winning, 50-17, with the reserves finishing the slaughter. During the time he was in the game, Hyatt registered six field goals and five fouls in as many tries, for a total of 17 points, as many as the entire opposition made all evening.

EDDIE BAKER, the football star of the Panthers, is proving an able co-worker of Hyatt on the floor team. Next to Hyatt, he is the most prominent man in the lineup. A natural athlete, he is on his way to writing a brilliant chapter in Pitt history.

The Pitt passers are a clever aggregation. Their record of 21 victories in as many starts last season is sufficient testimony of this. They lost three of their first four games this year against leading teams of the Middle West, but all were by close margins on foreign floors. It is a good wager that if they were to meet the same teams now, the results would be reversed by comfortable margins.

THE bewildering passing and fake passing attack worked out by Dr. H. C. Carlson, the coach, not only is very effective, but also is as spectacular a brand of basketball as could be asked. The good doctor prides himself on the footwork and body feinting of his men as they confuse the enemy with their maneuvering, especially on their triangle play, until they get a man loose under the basket, and well he may, for it is a thing of beauty to behold. The work of his proteges reflects him as not only the student of psychology that his book on basketball reveals him to be, but a master student and technician of the game as well.

Capt. Wunderlich, Zehfuss, Les Cohen, Arture and the other members of the squad round out a fine combination with Hyatt and Baker, and the team, despite its three early-season defeats, is one of the best, if not the very best, in the college ranks.

EXAMINE BANK ACCOUNTS IN BRIBE CASE

BOSTON, Jan. 11.—(AP.)—Its public hearings into the Sunday baseball scandal ended, the Boston Finance Commission was intent today upon an examination of the bank accounts of Emil E. Fuchs, president of the Boston Braves, and of Charles F. Adams, vice president.

BASED ON INQUIRY

At the last hearing yesterday Fuchs was denounced by City Councilman William G. Lynch as "a blackmailer, blackjacker and racketeer." Lynch denied Fuchs' story that Lynch had sought an aggregate of $63,000 for himself and 12 other councilmen in return for permission for big league baseball on Sundays.

Lynch testified that his characterization of Fuchs was based on an inquiry by the federal attorney's office in New York when Fuchs was attorney for Ralph A. Day, former federal prohibition director in New York. Lynch said the inquiry was made by John Holly Clarke, Jr., assistant federal attorney.

From New York Fuchs telephoned a statement insisting he had been cleared of suspicion and terming Lynch as a "bloody rat."

PRAISES FUCHS

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—(AP.)—Col. William Hayward, former federal attorney, today issued the following statement concerning allegations in the Boston baseball investigation about Emil E. Fuchs:

"While I was United States district attorney, certain allegations were made concerning Judge Fuchs. A thorough investogation was made of which I had full personal knowledge and information. The sources of these allegations seemed to me at the time to be most unreliable and subsequent events confirmed this opinion. My recollection is there was never any indictment. Fuchs' reputation was always good in this city and I believe him to have been in public as well as in private life a man of integrity and excellent character."

Col. Hayward was federal attorney when John Holly Clarke, Jr., was an assistant.

RODGERS TO BOX MAYBERRY AT MOOSE CLUB

Howard Mayberry, of Donora, who defeated Dave Adelman, of Philadelphia, at McKeesport last night, was signed immediately after that battle to meet Jackie Rodgers, Negro bantamweight of the Noth Side, in the 10-round windup of the opening show of Frank Flynn's new club, which will stage professional shows in the Moose Temple, Penn avenue, beginning next Friday night.

Mayberry already holds one decision over Rodgers, won in a sensational battle in McKeesport a few months ago. The battle was the "making" of both men as topnotch performers in this section.

Promoter Francis also has arranged one other bout for his card, which will consist of three six-round preliminaries in addition to his main event. It will bring together Johnny Smackey, of Canonsburg, and Mike Hogan, of the North Side.

Jimmy Belmont, of Braddock, will be one of the principals in the semi-final, and Sammy Paris, local amateur, will turn pro against a good opponent in the opening bout.

Popular prices of $1 and $2 will be charged for the Moose shows. There will be approximately 500 seats available at $1 and 1,000 at the higher price.

LOCAL BOXERS AT ERIE

Two local boxers will appear in bouts at Erie tonight, Dominick Profio meeting Joe Cansey, of Buffalo, and Jack McCarthy opposing Joe Corelli, of Erie.

A double windup card has been arranged for McKeesport next Thursday night. Battling Gizzy, of Donora, and Ken Harreaves, of New Kensington, are paired for the main event and Young Saylor, of Charleroi, will meet the best opponent obtainable in the other 10-rounder.

BIG BOUTS TONIGHT

Tommy Paul, Buffalo bantam, meets Frisco Grande, the Filippino, at Buffalo tonight in the semi-final to a bout between Sam Bruce and Myer Grace, welterweights. Other bouts carded tonight include: Ray Miller, knockerout of Jimmy McLarnin and Lope Tenorio vs. Tommy Grogan, Detroit; Midget Mike Odowd vs. Billy Evans, Fort Wayne; Jimmy McLarnin vs. Joe Glick, Eddie Guida vs. Bruce Flowers and Stanislaus Loayza vs. Freddie Mueller, 10 rounds each, Madison Garden, New York, and Joey Medill vs. Billy Wallace, Chicago.

An amateur boxing show will be held at the South Hills Country Club this evening.

LASSMAN, MIND BLANK, BODY NUMB, WALKS

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—(AP.)—A giant figure stirred under the white sheets of the hospital cot. A shaggy head with wax-white features and red-rimmed eyes lifted from the pillow and stared toward the doorway of the tiny room.

"Hello," said Al Lassman.

"Hello."

The mammoth shoulders heaved out of the bed clothes while eyes still strained to focus a picture on the tired brain. Then the foggy mind cleared, a bellow of welcome rang out into the hospital corridors and the giant all but lifted himself right out of the cot.

This was Al Lassman, football captain of New York University's violent Violets, on the road back to health at last after one of the closest engagements any athlete ever played with death. This was the six-foot-four tackle, with his 220 pounds of surging, tearing brawn, a tackle his coach, Chick Meehan, said was "the greatest ever to pull on shoes."

RECOVERY IS SLOW

It was seven weeks ago almost to a day, that Lassman played his last game of Intercollegiate football. In a battle that stole the pigskin show for that one day at least, his Violets smashed the Tartans of Carnegie Tech, unbeaten up to that day. After playing probably the finest football of his career for three quarters, Lassman was kicked in the head in the fourth period. For weeks he lay unconscious, critically hurt.

Now he is coming around again, slowly but with the almost positive assurance of medical men that he will be completely recovered within a few months.

Lassman wants that, for he has designs on the heavyweight championship left vacant by Gene Tunney.

Two years ago, as a sophomore, he won the Intercollegiate title and fight managers considered him a grand prospect. A broken leg suffered on the football field, kept him from the ring last winter.

PART OF BODY NUMB

But for this day at least, the huge patient is rather pitiful. The blow on his skull caused a blood clot on the brain affecting his entire left side. While Lassman is not paralyzed, that part of his body is numb and hard to control. He cannot remember a single game or happening of the football season and even more distant events are difficult to recall. His eyes blink constantly.

"It's just as though my body was split down the middle," he said. "Everything on the left side is blank. Only half my mouth tastes things when I eat. The doctors stick pins in my arm, but I can't feel them. It hurts to think, but I'll be O. K."

A nurse came in then with the announcement that it was time for exercise. The "jimmy shirt" of the bedridden was replaced by pajamas and a bath-robe. Lassman haled himself to his feet and tottered gleefully out into the hospital corridor.

EAGER TO ENTER RING

It was a grand occasion, swaying from side to side, his left leg hitching a bit and left arm crooked to his body, the tall broad youngster swung slowly down the corridor, stopping at each room to bellow greetings and thanks for some tid-bit sent to him by another patient.

Not satisfied with that, the battered warrior leaned his great bulk against the wall and lifted his hands to a fighting pose.

"A few more months and I'll be doing this again," he said. "I wanted to fight this winter. See, I can hook a little with my left. I love this football's all right, but boxing is the greatest game of all."

"Back to bed for you. You're too ambitious," said the little nurse, and Lassman went, sheepishly.

INSTITUTIONAL LEAGUE GAMES ARRANGED

By JULIUS LEVIN.

With the first half of the schedule all but completed, members of the Greater Pittsburgh Institutional League, one of the best amateur circuits operating hereabouts this season, are eagerly awaiting the start of the final half on January 18, when Heinz House appears at Hill Top Y. M. C. A.

Despite the fact that several teams were unable to muster their full strength in the first half of the race, the games played so far have left no room for complaint. The winner of the first-half title still is in doubt and will not be settled until next Wednesday night, when Kingsley House meets North Side Community House in a playoff of a postponed game.

At present the Y. M. H. A. is leading the field by a half game, having completed its schedule by losing to Community House. In event Kingsley House wins next Wednesday's game it will be tied with Y. M. H. A., thus necessitating a playoff series. The schedule for the second round follows:

January 18—Heinz House at Hill Top. January 19—Community House at East Liberty; Y. M. H. A. at Heinz House. January 25—Community House at Hill Top. January 28—East Liberty at Y. M. H. A.; Heinz House at Community House. January 30—East Liberty at Kingsley House. February 2—Kingsley House at Community House; Hill Top at Heinz House.

NURMI'S ENTRY FILED

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—(AP.)—Paavo Nurmi, the "Phantom Finn," will start his second American track and field campaign at the Brooklyn College games Saturday, January 19. Nurmi's entry in the 5,000 yards invitation race has been received by meet officials here.

FLYER DAWSON EAGER FOR BIG YEAR

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

"In the pink" after months of flying and other outdoor activities, Joe Dawson, ace pitcher of the Pirate squad, took time out today to state that he was anxious for a busier season on the diamond.

The owner of two aeroplanes which he uses in his school of instruction, Dawson has transferred his holdings from Roberts Field to Bettis Field, where he will hold forth until he leaves with the first squad of Pittsburgh players early about five weeks hence.

Joe had a pretty fair season in 1928, but he was far from being satisfied with results. In the point of earned-run effectiveness, Dawson was well up among the leaders, winning seven and losing the same amount of games. He was used often in the relief role.

"I think the time has come when I should have a good year in the majors," said Joe, who has been pitching for quite a few years. Nothing would suit him better than to start in his regular turn in the coming campaign.

Dawson has quite a task ahead of him to insure a berth as a first-choice sharpshooter. The acquisition of Steve Swetonic has given the local staff another pitcher who is expected to be a winner, and the staff already sported a number of high lights.

Burleigh Grimes, of course, is the first consideration, with Jess Petty, Fred Fussell, Remy Kremer, Carmen Hill, Swetonic and Dawson rated high. Petty is likely to get the call over Fussell in the southpaw division, yet the frail boy from the Middle West behaves at times like a topnotcher.

it. He already holds a decision over Glick, won in 1926, on the coast.

AMONG those who went to New York to pay their last respects to Tex Rickard, was Captain Irving O'Hay, soldier of fortune and veteran of eight wars, who has been heard here as a lecturer. He canceled several engagements to make the trip.

"When one of the wars in Mexico ended," he relates, "my pal Ernie Carr and I, after being rival generals, beat it for Reno dead broke, to see the Jeffries-Johnson fight. We had to change trains so often by special request that we did not reach Reno until the day after the bout. Then we started in to help tear down the arena in order to get enough money to buy supper.

Capt. Irving O'Hay

"WALTER C. KELLY, the Virginia Judge, and Jim Corbett spotted us, called us off and dragged us before Richard. Tex had a good laugh when told that two Mexican army generals had been caught in the act of doing some real work. He staked us to a case of beer, a box of cigars, a meal and transportation to Chicago. But I had heard of Rickard before that time. I happened to be with Joe Humphreys and Tim Hurst when Joe received a telegram from Goldfield, Nevada, offering a purse of $30,000 for a fight between Terry McGovern and Jimmy Britt. It was signed 'George Rickard.' 'There's one for the book. Whoever George Rickard is I don't know, but he certainly has funny ideas.' He and Hurst had a good laugh, and I must admit that I joined in myself. Later, Rickard got Gans and Nelson. I wonder if Humphreys, when the second Tunney-Dempsey fight drew a $2,600,000 crowd, happened to think of the time he laughed when 'George Rickard' offered a $30,000 purse?"

HARPSTER LION IN AKRON

AKRON, O., Jan. 11.—Howard Harpster, all-American quarterback of Carnegie Tech of Pittsburgh, whose home is in Akron, will be royally feted by his townspeople today in honor of his achievements on the gridiron during the 1928 season, which he climaxed with a brilliant exhibition in piloting the all-East team to a victory over the all-West eleven at San Francisco.

The festivities include his presence as the guest of honor at the luncheons of both the Shrine Club and the Knights of Columbus and a public reception in the Goodyear gymnasium in the evening. The star's father, Milton E. Harpster, a local architect, will be jointly honored with his son. The City Club also will honor Harpster at a dinner.

Harpster, who acted as the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph's correspondent at the East-West and Tournament of Roses games on the coast, also will be signally honored at the annual football banquet of Carnegie Tech in the ballroom of the William Penn Hotel here tomorrow afternoon.

Local Golfers Win In Florida Event

MIAMI BEACH, Jan. 11.—Two Pittsburgh amateur golfers finished among the leaders in the professional-amateur best-ball team competition over the Bay Shore Country Club course here, yesterday. They were C. M. Scott and James Hammond. Scott was paired with Johnny Farrell, the national open champion, and finished with 35-36—71. Hammond had Denis L. Sullivan, of Lima, O., as his teammate, and turned in a similar best-ball card.

George Voight, of New York, who won the qualifying medal in the national amateur championship, only to be eliminated in the semi-final round, was a deciding factor in his team's play in winning the event yesterday.

Getting Distance

IT'S hard to get "distance" on your radio, especially when weather conditions are bad.

But it's always easy to get "distance" on your telephone. Weather makes no difference; the voice at the other end of the line always comes over "just as clear as a local station."

No static—no "interference." Just give the name of the city and the number you are calling to the operator, and in almost no time you're there.

SOCCER CHAMPS SET FOR FRAY

By TOM BIRKS.

THE classic of the local soccer season will be flashed tomorrows afternoon at the home of the Pitt Panther when Heidelberg meets the McKeesport National Tube in the final of the West Penn senior cup. Seeing that Heidelberg will be defending its title, a banner crowd should be on hand to watch this struggle.

Fans viewing this battle will see two types of soccer on display. Heidelberg plays and has always played the American brand of football, that gets away from the scientific sort of the game; fast, bustling movements that only have one object in mind, the getting of goals. On the other hand, the National Tube eleven is composed of practically all British-born players, who do not worry much about dash, but play the typical European brand of short passing soccer that appeals to the crowds.

TAD'S STORY ON RICKARD

Never Known to Brag

He invited an old cowpuncher friend of his from Texas to come up to Rickard's the fun. The cowpuncher did. Two days after the bout the writer came East on the same train with this friend Jim and Tex. We sat in the smoker that evening and the talk could naturally have would center around Jeff and Johnson and the big fight.

Not at all. Jim and Tex "cut up a few old touches" as the boys say when they refer to chatting of the old days.

The biggest laugh of the night and the story that almost put Tex to the floor in his jollity was the one he told about a tough mule he owned.

"D'ye remember that mule, Jim?" said Tex, laughing before he even started to tell us the story. Jim laughed, too.

"Say, I was trying to get a bit into that sucker's mouth that day," he continued, "and he got my thumb in between his teeth and didn't he hang on. Say, Jim, d'ye remember how he backed away and me yelling like a Comanche Indian and that sucker still held on? And, Jim, d'ye remember that I had to stick my finger in that sucker's eye before he opened his mouth and let go my thumb?

And Jim and Tex laughed for about 15 minutes more.

All they talked about for four hours was mules and horses and ranches and cattle rustlers and the like.

If there was any BRAG in Tex, it certainly would have come to the surface that night.

SCREW AND BOLT HOLDS GAIN IN MARKET HERE

Trading was fairly active at the start of business on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today, with prices displaying a moderate upward tendency.

Pittsburgh Screw and Bolt and the Arkansas Gas issues were the active features of the initial trading. Screw and Bolt was in good demand at prices equivalent to the best level of yesterday's trading in which it shot up three points, following a similar gain in the preceding session. Arkansas common was in demand around $4 a share, the best price of the current movement. Until this week the stock had been unable to reach the $4 level, although it sold up to that figure several weeks ago.

Miscellaneous industrial issues were steady to firm. The announcement that Central Ohio Steel Products Company will increase its common stock from 20,000 to 50,000 shares and rumors that the financing involves the retirement of the preferred stock, had the effect of strengthening the market for Central Ohio. There is a small floating supply of the issue and it is likely any increase in demand for the issue would have immediate reflection in the market.

Aside from the activity in Arkansas Gas, the local fuel issues were extremely dull. Lone Star Gas, leader of the fuel group on the exchange here, did not appear in the sales list at all yesterday and also failed to appear during the forenoon today. On the curb, Western Public Service displayed continued strength and was active at slightly above 26. Aluminum Goods, which has been a favorite on the curb for several days, quieted down noticeably today.

Sugar Tariff Farm Relief Not Feasible, It Is Argued.

—By B. C. FORBES—

"SHOULD we all have to pay more for sugar?" should be asked rather than "should the United States grow its own sugar?" urges one reader, referring to what appeared here the other day.

Opponents of raising the tariff on sugar contend that very few of the many millions added to the consumers' sugar bill would actually get to beet and cane growers inside continental United States.

The main benefits of a higher tariff, they declare, would go to the Philippines, Porto Rico and Hawaii, where cheap labor makes possible the undercutting of home-grown sugar notwithstanding that much of the labor employed in home sugar growing is brought from Mexico.

So the impending hearings at Washington on this subject promise to be lively.

SOME of the arguments in favor of greater protection were given in this column by B. G. Dahlberg, who is investing millions of dollars in developing cane sugar growing in Louisiana and Florida and who utilizes the cane waste (bamasse) for the manufacture of a product which takes the place of lumber.

What might be called "the other side" has been freely voiced by letter and personal calls since that column appeared. For example, H. H. Pike, Jr., New York, puts the case thus.

"The price we pay for sugar in this country is built upon the world price, plus duty, plus cost of refining. At the present moment the Cuban duty of 1.76 is 80 per cent of the value of the raw product. This means a bill to the American people of $226,000,000, of which the United States Treasury gets $125,000,000 and the domestic producer $101,000,000.

"Of this latter sum, Porto Rico, Hawaii and the Philippines, producing sugar under a different civilization and under tropical conditions and who cannot fairly be called American farmers, are getting $66,000,000, while our domestic beet and cane producers are getting $35,000,000, only.

"Of this $35,000,000 the manufacturer gets at least half and he is not a farmer. Of the half that the farmer gets, a very large percentage goes to the labor in the beet fields, which labor under special arrangement is brought in from Mexico under contract, and is not American labor.

"WORKING this out, one would find that the American farmer perhaps gets $18,000,000 out of the total cost of $226,000,000, or say 12 per cent. Is this economical?

"Suppose we raise the duty to the 4 per cent level Mr. Dahlberg speaks of. That would mean practically doubling the above figures. And would the American farmer get a larger percentage?

"Such a raise in tariff would make sugar production in the United States profitable, but just profitable. It would make production of sugar in the Philippines, Hawaii and Porto Rico a bonanza. Production in those countries would immediately increase by leaps and bounds only limited by the acreage available. How much of the increase would the farmer get?

"Another angle is that something like 40 per cent of our population is farmer; while on the above calculation they are going to get between 5 and 10 per cent of the benefit.

"Also, if we produced all or most of our own sugar, the United States Treasury would lose the income of $125,000,000 raised from customs duties, which sum would have to be raised by some other means, but would be paid by us all just the same—but into the coffers of the sugar producer.

"CUBA is one of the farmers' best customers, buying millions of dollars' worth of American farm products annually. If we run Cubans out of the sugar business, they will have to produce their own truck, potatoes, eggs, corn, milk, etc., which now they buy from our farmers.

"There are other reasons, but isn't the above sufficient evidence that an indirect subsidy to United States sugar is an impossibly wasteful way of helping our farmers?"

IF THAT squaring is substantially correct, it certainly would seem as if American families would have to pay, collectively, far, far more than would go into the pockets of sugar growers in Continental United States and that most of the extra price paid for sugar would go to the Philippines, Porto Rico and Hawaii.

On the other hand, there are very fundamental reasons for doing everything economically possible to build up our own agricultural prosperity. Is a higher tariff on sugar one means which should be adopted?

It will be interesting to watch what happens in Washington.

STEEL SHARES LEAD STOCK ADVANCE

NEW YORK, Jan. 11. (AP)—Heavy buying of the steel shares, based on reports of unusually favorable trade conditions, featured the frequent higher price movement in today's stock market. Although operations for the advance retained control of the general price movement, some liquidation developed in the food and motor shares, several of which fell back 2 to nearly 7 points around midday. Trading was fairly heavy in volume, but the ticker kept well abreast of the market.

Liquidation of the 6 per cent call money renewal rate despite the disappointingly small decrease in brokers' loans helped to maintain bullish enthusiasm. The Chicago Federal Reserve Bank followed the action of the New York institution in making no change in its 5 per cent rediscount rate. Except for an advance in brass ingot prices, a sharp rise in rubber futures and the first decline in the price of wooded pipe since 1925, the day's trade news was rather colorless in character.

The announcement of a new public utility holding company by J. P. Morgan & Co. interests revived speculation for the advance in the power and light stocks. Commonwealth Power and American Water Works quickly advanced 4½ points, the former to a new high at 117¾, and several others moved up a point or two.

The brisk demand for U. S. Steel common, which advanced more than 4 points to 168½, was influenced in part by unconfirmed rumors that the corporation might distribute part of the $26,000,000 recently received in federal tax refunds as an extra dividend. Bethlehem was heavily bought in anticipation that dividends would be resumed on the common stock at the annual rate of $4 or $5 at the directors' meeting late this month. Vanadium ran up more than 4 points. Last quarter earnings of the leading producers are expected to make an excellent comparison with the corresponding quarter of 1927.

New bond offerings this week were less than $18,000,000, or about half the total of the preceding week, and more than $100,000,000 below the total of the corresponding week a year ago. This explains, in part, why a large part of the January reinvestment demand has found its way into the stock market.

Some of the sharpest gains of the day were recorded by such issues as Allied Chemical, International Telephone, National Bellas Hess, Indian Refining preferred, Standard Milling, Stewart Warner, Radio, Air Reduction, U. S. Rubber, Warren Bros., Warner Bros. Pictures and United Drug, all of which sold 4 to 9¾ points higher. National Biscuit dropped more than 6 points, National Tea 5 and Chrysler, Pierce Arrow, Montgomery Ward, Dupont and Union Pacific fell back 2 points or more.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 11. The cotton market opened steady at a decline of 7 to 12 points with the active months selling 11 to 14 points net lower during the first few minutes, under fairly general selling inspired by late declines in Liverpool and reports that one of the trade authorities here had reduced his estimate of the December consumption for December, however, was said to have been about the same per working day as in November. After selling off to 19.89c for March the market rallied to 20.06c for that position by the end of the first hour, when the market was about net unchanged to 4 points higher. Private cables said that trade calling and continental buying had absorbed offerings in the Liverpool market and that reports reaching Manchester from China were more encouraging as to pending business in cotton cloths.

Offerings were light after the initial selling had run its course, with the market showing a firmer tone in the morning. March contracts sold up to 20.18c and July to 19.41c on covering and scattered buying by trade interests, or about 14 to 16 points net higher but not some realizing at these figures and showed reactions of 3 or 4 points from the best at midday.

SUGAR MARKET.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—The raw sugar market was firm today but as no sales were reported prices were unchanged at 3.96c for spots duty paid. Refiners were said to be showing more interest at this level but holders were asking higher levels.

The raw sugar futures market opened unchanged to 2 points higher but soon developed a firmer undertone on reports of active covering and buying by houses with Cuban connections, promoted by reports from Cuba suggesting the probability of no sales excepting to refiners at the Cuban price. The reports said that a meeting of the sugar export corporation has been called for next Tuesday to discuss conditions. The failure of the sugar industry's suggestion to be made to the National Commission for Defense of Sugar in order to recommend the best steps to be taken. The whole forenoon session attracted considerable selling and reactions followed although prices at midday were still 1 to 2 points above the previous close.

Refined sugar was reduced 10 points by all refiners to the basis of 5.00c for fine granulated. A better inquiry was reported but it was confined to nearby requirements only.

ELECTRIC WELD PIPE GAINING IN FAVOR

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

THE success with the production of electrically welded pipe secured by one company last year has driven practically all of the pipe companies to extensive research work to develop similar processes.

The A. O. Smith Corporation of Milwaukee recently was reported to have orders for 170,000 tons of electrically welded pipe on its books. In the first seven months of 1928 alone this company booked 180,000 tons.

THE new production has started to cut into the sale of lap welded pipe in the larger sizes and into seamless tube volume to some extent. The seamless mills are also supplanting lap weld pipe in sizes under eight inches in diameter so that the total volume of seamless tube sold remains large.

Republic Iron & Steel is doing the most extensive work in developing an electric weld system by perfecting patents secured through the recent acquisition of Steel and Tubes, Inc.

Spang, Chalfant & Co. will include experiments with electric welding in its future development work and most other companies are following suit. One large independent here has expressed a belief that it will shortly have a process available to make a better product than the A. O. Smith Corporation.

A WIDE range of sizes is claimed for Republic's method of welding. This includes every kind of tubing from a hypodermic needle to the largest size used for pipe lines.

The new development in pipe production is not expected to take place over night, but it is freely predicted that the steel companies will make large expenditure for electric welding equipment over the next few years.

The advantage in electric welding lies in the fact that a stronger product can be secured than by mechanical welding at a cost which is lower than that of seamless tube. The increased strength of the joint makes it possible to use a lighter weight pipe so that large economies are often possible for the consumers.

GREATER agricultural, commercial and residential construction in Pennsylvania this year is indicated by a survey made by the Universal Portland Cement Company. On the other hand public utility, public works and public building construction is expected to decline.

The survey was made with the assistance of a large number of dealers who are closest to the local conditions and have an intimate knowledge of projects under consideration.

WHILE the survey showed more dealers expecting an increase than a decrease in the classes of building mentioned, this growth is not likely to be large. In all cases more dealers expected business to be about the same than expected sales to be bigger.

For the state as a whole 150 dealers expected the total building to be greater this year than last while 127 expected a decline. Against this 309 dealers reported that they anticipated little change in volume.

SECTION 1.—Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, That the revenues of said City derived from taxes and other sources during the fiscal year beginning January 1, 1929, and ending December 31, 1929, are hereby appropriated in the sum of $25,594,618.00 to pay the expenses of conducting the public business of the City of Pittsburgh and meeting the debt charges thereof during said fiscal year beginning January 1, 1929, and ending December 31, 1929, and all unencumbered balances of appropriations remaining open upon the books of the City Controller at the close of the fiscal year shall be and the same are hereby ordered to be cancelled, except such amounts as shall be specially requested by letter from the Director or Chairman of the special activity having the matter in charge, certifying that the amounts requested are required for the purpose for which specifically appropriated, or such amounts as shall be directed to be carried over to the fiscal year 1929 by resolution or ordinance of Council.

SECTION 2.—No liability shall be incurred against any appropriation item in excess of the unencumbered balance thereof, and said appropriation items shall be administered subject to and in conformity with the following terms and conditions:

(a) The heads of the several departments shall prepare the several payrolls for audit by the Controller in accordance with the items of the ordinance establishing the respective positions and rates of compensation, and no payroll shall be approved for payment by the Controller unless the incumbents and the rates of compensation agree with the items of said ordinance, and unless the payrolls show the appropriation account or accounts chargeable with the compensation of each employe included therein.

(b) There shall be affixed to all payrolls a certificate made by the person preparing such payrolls to the effect that there is a time record on file in said department certified to by a person or persons having knowledge of the facts, showing the character of service and exact time of employment of each person named in the payroll, and that the distribution of time as shown on the payroll is in accordance with such time records.

(c) No transfer shall be made from one appropriation item to another except by resolution or ordinances of council, and such resolution or ordinance shall in each case set forth the reasons for such request, and be accompanied by a certification from the Controller stating that there is a sufficient balance unencumbered and available in the appropriation item from which the transfer is to be made.

SECTION 3.—No obligation shall be incurred by any department of the City government, other than for salaries or wages or for necessary expenses of employes when engaged upon City business, except through the issue of an order, stating the service to be rendered, work performed, or supplies, materials or equipment to be furnished, together with the estimated cost of the same. BUGS BAER Says

So far as talking pictures are concerned we are afraid that everything is going to be all right.

Arthur "Bugs" Baer

The first one we heard sounded like imitations of birds, bees and animals.

The general effect of the second was somewhat about the tempo that you would obtain by smacking the portrait of your grandmop with a ripe banjo.

But they are getting better now. We heard our first one in Roxy's Armory, formerly known as the Cathedral of the Cinema, but now recognized as the garage of the theme song.

One little talking picture doesn't disturb you much in a big place like Roxy's.

Theme songs are the prominent chunk of talking pictures. When you walk down Roxy's aisle in a parade of his ushers you realize that you are taking an active part in the first coast-to-coast marathon ever held indoors.

The ushers march slowly, chanting an obligatto with concerto flourishes. You are supposed to join in the chorus for it is the theme song of the weekly feature.

The orchestra plays it twice. Once by request. And the next time by habit. A tenor steps forth and adds his melody to the theme of things.

Then the picture starts and you discover that the theme song is interwoven in the plot.

By the time that you have heard the theme song for the seventeenth time you don't know whether you are seeing a picture or taking a music lesson.

After the picture has been wound off its musical spindle, the organist picks up the theme and gives it to you with variations.

By this time you are all themed up. Roxy's beautiful chorus skiddles forth and gives you the theme in a debutante manner. By the time a baritone breaks loose with the same hymn of hate, it begins to sound familar.

The picture is ended but the melody is incurable. You waltz down the aisle to the exit to the strains of "Angela Meow" or "Sonny Boy."

The result is that everything now requires a theme song and great industries will be required to wire their offices for sound and melody.

And the only way you can get to sleep at night is to call up the janitor and ask him to turn on the theme.

Council Protects Homes In Zone Law Decision

Public approval marks the refusal of Council to change zoning regulations to permit the erection of an apartment house at Fifth and Morewood avenues. The temper of the people was indicated in the storm of protest against the proposed ordinance, passage of which would have permitted a large structure for occupation by many families in a district populated by single families dwelling in substantial residences. More than 200 persons appeared to object to the invasion of a home district in which the residents take pride by a commercial enterprise that they felt would be disfiguring and the introduction of a factor that would be discordant in the general tone of the neighborhood.

Our zoning ordinance has been in effect for several years. As it was an experiment, rigidity of the lines stipulated, it was found, could not be maintained in their entirety without doing injustice to certain property owners. Hence, there have been frequent requests for reclassification. But there must be a stop at some point if zoning is to be of any benefit in protecting the property of home owners from the encroachments of commercial and industrial lines, which, we assume, is the intent of the law.

Council properly called a halt and not too soon. Its act is commended not because the district affected by the decision is occupied by homes of the well-to-do, but because it establishes a precedent. It will be a guide to action should a similar request be made affecting any community where the character is sufficiently definitely established to identify it distinctly as a home center, the nature of which would be destroyed by the erection of a multiple-family dwelling.

The entire city is fortunate in that there was sufficient interest in this matter to make vigorous protest. All members of Council declared themselves to be in sympathy with the expression against changing the character of a residential district having a homey atmosphere. Even the father of the measure said that it did not represent his personal views and that he introduced it as part of the routine of the committee he heads. The City Planning Commission sent a written objection and various civic organizations were among the protestants.

We hope the agitation will result in Council being extremely careful in the future about making changes in zoning classification that may prove to be amendments but not corrections.

State Should Abolish Coal and Iron Cossacks

Patrick T. Fagan has been awarded a verdict of $5,000 because of deprivation of his rights as an American citizen by Cossacks employed by a coal company. He was arrested, as an incident of the coal strike, by irresponsible persons to whom the State of Pennsylvania shamefully permits the official title of "coal and iron police" to be tagged.

During the course of the trial of this case, for false arrest and humiliation, the coal company attempted to evade responsibility for the acts of its lawless crew, claiming they were state officers. This is a fine point, since the state merely gives authority for the employment of any kind of thugs a company wishes to hire and pay for.

During the course of the strike these hirelings of the coal companies were held in high esteem by their employers, but later these same employers attempt to disavow their outrageous conduct, when it gets into court, where responsibility may be fixed.

Nevertheless, the case brings to public attention again the fact that Pennsylvania permits to come into existence at intervals the most un-American organization it would be possible to imagine. Our Legislature, which reconvenes Monday, either should place the coal and iron police entirely under state jurisdiction, where they would be impartial in their enforcement of the law, or do away with the force entirely. Under the present law they merely do the bidding of their private employers, having no thought for the rights of those upon whom they impose their tyranny.

Tales That Are Told

Food First

FOR weeks and weeks the young lover had been practicing the speech he intended to make when he could summon up sufficient courage to propose to the girl of his heart.

At last he thought he had hit on the right words. There happened to be a full moon at the time, and the young man decided that opportunity was knocking.

"I am mad about you," he whispered to the girl of his choice, "and in my breast burns the immortal flame of an undying love. I worship you with a tremendous, overpowering adoration."

The girl eyed the young man a second, then turned away.

"Ah," she said presently, "when do we eat, Ernest dear?"

Careless

SUDDENLY a dreadful thought occurred to Mallinson. He had started out for the local cinema with his wife, when he remembered that the coal-cellar door was unlocked. So he went back, and, turning the key in the lock, put it in his pocket and retraced his steps to the cinema.

On returning three hours later he found a neighbor in a state of great indignation.

"What's wrong?" inquired Mr. Mallinson.

"You've locked my wife in your coal-shed," was the unexpected reply.

"Gentlemen Prefer—"

MRS. M'HUNT had been suspicious of her husband for some time. Finally she engaged a private detective to report his movements.

After a few days the detective visited Mrs. McHunt.

"Your husband met this girl and they went out to dinner," he explained.

"Was she blonde or brunet?" inquired Mrs. McHunt, anxiously.

"She was very much a blonde."

"Thank goodness for that," exclaimed the neglected wife. "At least my husband is still a gentleman."

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS

THERE was an old Scotchman by the name of Angus that used to walk six miles downtown to work every morning, and six miles home again at night. A friend of his that had a car passed him one day and says to him, "Hey, Angus, want a ride?"

So Angus got in and rode, and seemed mighty tired.

"What do you walk so far for? Is it for your health?"

"No, for pleasure."

"Pleasure, I should think you was crazy! Ain't you too tired for pleasure walking?"

"No," says Angus, who didn't know any Scotch, "I get all my pleasure that way. Walking and thinking how much gasoline I ain't using up."

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

"SOME day, when I can settle down and take things easy—"

That slogan has sent many a life on the rocks. For the life that has settled down to take things easy is a finished life. It is of no further use to itself or anyone else.

LIVES THAT ARE GROWING ARE NOT SETTLED DOWN—THEY ARE PERPETUALLY UNSETTLED, UNEASY, DISSATISFIED.

Henrick Pontoppidan has built his story, "The Royal Guest," about this truth. You'll find it in the collection of "Denmark's Best Stories" recently released by W. W. Norton & Co.

It is the story of a young married couple who are unconsciously drifting into that apathy which is so deadly to married life. For five years they have enjoyed perfect happiness and health and, as a consequence, they have become daily more stupid, lazy and careless. They sit about in slovenly clothes, speaking stupidly of the weather, the condition of their poultry or when they shall give their oldest child a dose of castor oil.

Into this dull and dangerous condition steps a gay stranger who is, though they do not realize, the Spirit of Romance. Within a few hours he has revolutionized their lives. In his honor they dress in their neglected wedding finery. Out from nooks in which it was hidden came the best silver, the old lace, treasured wine. A feast was spread, the candles gleamed above a bowl of yellow roses and while they ate the stranger sang old songs of love—songs that set their sluggish blood to tingling and finally roused them into that long forgotten delight, a lovers' quarrel. Then the stranger vanished. But from that time on they were no longer a humdrum married couple. They loved—they lived!

Pontoppidan writes: "The spirit of romance had entered their home and left behind the restlessness and insecurity which is the heartbeat of life, nay, life itself. The paradisiac monotony of their existence had vanished. The serpent had been there with his promise of distant and strange glory. The little smug, self-satisfied happiness of domesticity had been turned out of doors and had at least for a while given way to the great, sad yearning which opens the mind and turns it toward the infinite.

"During the long and stormy evenings of the following winter music and song sounded more and more frequently from within, and the joyous tones were carried by the wind toward the dark and dreary hearth, about which a fleet of heavy clouds were sailing forth unceasingly as a symbol of the restlessness of eternity."

"THE GREAT SAD YEARNING WHICH OPENS THE MIND AND TURNS IT TOWARD THE INFINITE"—beware if you have ceased to yearn, if you have become quite content, if you whine at inconvenience and rebel at change.

Seek quickly some new adventure—force yourself to undertake some new hazard.

Keep your life moving—restless—STAY ALIVE!

STAR HEAT

By Garrett P. Serviss

IF you go out of doors about 10 o'clock at night now and look into the southeast part of the sky, you will see the brightest of all fixed stars, flashing many-colored rays, if the air is clear, but cold and a little unsteady. The name of this brilliant star is Sirius.

At the same time if you look upward and to the right from Sirius, you will see, high in the south, near the meridian, the splendid constellation, Orion, the most remarkable in the whole sky, with its two great first magnitude stars and its many smaller ones, including three which form a short, straight row, called Orion's Belt.

The reddish star above and somewhat to the left of the Belt is the famous Betelgeuse, whose diameter was measured with the "interferometer" a few years ago and found to be at least two hundred and fifteen million miles, which is more than two-and-a-third times the distance from the earth to the sun!

It is to these two stars—Sirius and Betelgeuse, that I wish to call your attention. While Sirius sends us more light than any other star, Betelgeuse sends us more heat than any other as far as is yet known. The light of Sirius is a very conspicuous phenomenon, while Betelgeuse, too, is radiantly beautiful, yet to measure the heat of either a most delicate electric instrument, the "thermo-couple," must be employed and it is only recently that science has perfected this.

When the rays of the star Betelgeuse are collected at the focus of the 100-inch mirror of the great Hooker telescope on Mt. Wilson in California, they produce a heating effect so slight that it can only be described in hundred-thousandths of a degree: in short it is utterly beyond all direct perception by human senses. Seth B. Nicholson, of the Mt. Wilson Observatory, says:

"A star of the same color as the sun which is just bright enough to be easily seen without a telescope, radiates on the whole United States about the same amount of heat as is radiated by the sun on one square yard. When the heat from such a star which falls on the 100-inch mirror of the Hooker telescope, the area of which is six square yards, is focused on the receiver of a thermo-couple the temperature of the receiver is increased about one half millionth of a Fahrenheit degree, and a current of electricity is made to flow through the galvanometer. The current thus generated is about one twenty-millionth of an ampere."

The heat from Betelgeuse is greater than this, but still so slight that except for these delicate measurements we should know nothing about it. The superiority of Betelgeuse to Sirius in heating effect is found to be due to their relative color, for Betelgeuse is reddish and Sirius bluish. But our atmosphere absorbs much of the heat, especially that conveyed by the blue and violet rays, and when the extra loss thus occasioned to Sirius is allowed for, it is concluded that but for our atmosphere Sirius would be the star giving the most heat on the earth as well as the one giving the most light.

Bible Passages

"Trust in the Lord"

(Psalm 115.)

NOT unto us, O Lord, not unto us, but unto thy name give glory, for thy mercy, and for thy truth's sake.

Wherefore should the heathen say, Where is now their God?

But our God is in the heavens: he hath done whatsoever he hath pleased.

Their idols are silver and gold, the work of men's hands.

They have mouths, but they speak not: eyes have they, but they see not:

They have ears, but they hear not: noses have they, but they smell not:

They have hands, but they handle not: feet have they, but they walk not: neither speak they through their throat.

They that make them are like unto them; so is every one that trusteth in them.

O Israel, trust thou in the Lord: he is their help and their shield.

O house of Aaron, trust in the Lord: he is their help and their shield.

Ye that fear the Lord, trust in the Lord: he is their help and their shield.

The Lord hath been mindful of us: he will bless us; he will bless the house of Israel; he will bless the house of Aaron.

He will bless them that fear the Lord, both small and great.

Ye are blessed of the Lord which made heaven and earth.

The heaven, even the heavens, are the Lord's: but the earth hath he given to the children of men.

The dead praise not the Lord, neither any that go down into silence.

But he will bless the Lord from this time forth and for evermore. Praise the Lord.

Faith

HOW can I tell that a brighter day
Is certain to greet me soon?
Why, never a year that has passed away
But has brought me its joy of June!
Never a bough by November stripped,
Left leafless and bare and brown,
But grew green again when the gay spring tripped
Back to earth with her leafy crown.
Faith may dwindle sometimes to a candle-gleam,
But through fury of winds and gale
It shows clear as the north star's steadfast beam
That never can change or fail.
So, though the prospect is dread and bleak,
And the time of the rose seems far,
My dreams still harbor the hope I seek
And mock at the calendar!

Your Office Bogey

By Herbert Kaufman

DON'T boast of your bogey if you can't match it with an office score. Golf is primarily a creation of maturity and success—a process of semi-retirement, rather than a young man's game.

Spend your spare time practicing business strokes. Most of the fellows who can land on the green in one aren't landing bonuses nor are they at the push end of executive bell buttons.

You can't play two games with all your strength and be a champion at either—the drain on mental and physical tissues is too great.

John D. Rockefeller didn't begin to swing at the ball until he had a tidy bank balance.

Andrew Carnegie didn't put on his knickers until the balance sheet assured him that he could risk an occasional afternoon on the links.

T. J. Watson was too busy, before 50, building up the National Cash Register and whipping together the I. B. M. to learn the relative merits of niblick and mashie.

Schiff, Morgan and Harriman found all the exercise they could use in carrying railroads and industries on their backs.

When a fellow club member remarked upon Gladstone's indifferent billiard technique, he retorted that he managed his cue as well as any usefully occupied person could be expected to manipulate it.

He squanders so much energy on the links and courts that he has none left for concentration.

An exhausted man can't think straight.

Mr. Gladstone wasn't a star cricketer, either. But he had enough vitality, in his eighties, to run the British Empire.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—Thoughts while strolling: Those rare window displays at Saks. Norman Bel-Geddes stuff. Benign white-haired gentlemen who growl if you get in their way. Baby doll faces with serpent wise eyes. The kind who are always being insulted at apartment house parties.

Blanche Ring's happy smile. Heywood Broun with a fresh haircut. Earl Carroll's angelic expression. Fifth avenue restaurant offers chill. And why not. Something sad about the stark naked trees in Central Park. But the robins will soon be tugging at worms again. Tra la!

Wonder what the bus checkers who stand in the doorways do with their reports. Tappe, the man milliner from Sidney, O. Zero in comedy—those comedians who bark like dogs at dogs on leashes. Something depressing about bugle call. Hatless boys with pipes who rush madly along. Those unctious husbands of rich women.

All night beauty parlors that open at 4 p. m. And the bright ladies who leave them so cosmetically bedecked for the evening. The bandbox gyp theatrical agencies. Grantland Rice, a Murfresboro, Tenn., boy, who made good in the city. Sign: "Madame Finnigan—Gowns."

What became of the craze for bois de rose? The hotel starter who is a striking image of Lloyd George. Times Square-heads. Barney Gallant has become Bernard in the telephone book. The boys who play bridge and dance expertly in this town do not need to work. Abject beggars who work the limousines.

Wonder if drug stores still employ pharmacists. Never a time in New York when the streets are not torn up. Still it furnishes a lot of work for the Tammany boys. Rita Weiman and her husband. Overheard "She lives in the snootiest block on Park avenue." Which block is that?

Wish I could sit down at a piano and touch off one of those rippling little airs. Or discuss poetry and art in a careless easy way. Instead of sitting like a statue. And just as inarticulate Ina Claire stepping out of the Ritz.

Those stooped and venerable messenger "boys."

New York's largest hat store is said to pay a $250,000 yearly rental for its new location on the avenue and has more than a dozen display windows. Aside from its main salon there is also a department on the second floor. New Yorkers are, according to population, the most prolific buyers of hats. The heaviest buyers, next to Tom Mix, who actually buys a car load at a time, is a wealthy Montana mine owner who wears a beaver Alpine shaped hat that sells for $60 each. He buys them in dozen lots.

Word comes to Broadway that George Rector is now directing the cuisine for a railroad with headquarters in Chicago. He conducts his school of cooking in an especially built dining car.

With the exception of Mr. Rector, nearly all the old restaurateurs along Broadway of 20 years ago, have fallen on evil days. They were able to make huge fortunes but not able to keep them. One other notable exception is the proprietor of one of the best known establishments.

He had the forsight to acquire a 99-year lease on a prominent Broadway corner at a small yearly rental. Since that time stupendous offers have been made for his leasehold on the building. But he is the victim of a Broadway weakness—playing the ponies.

And he feared to have the entire sum in a lump. He desired to protect his children in case anything happened. When Broadway "went Chinese" his place became an Oriental cafe. He retired but is assured of an income of more than $50,000 a year until the lease expires.

OH, THESE WOMEN

By Leola Allard

SHE is the Thursday cleaning woman and she is a good old-fashioned black darkey with a sense of humor like nothing else I know. Thursdays are highly amusing in the house where she works, because her employers encourage her to entertain them and in that way she earns more than her wage.

Yesterday she was telling about the Charleston darkeys "what wear red flannels. They ain't no red lambs and I don't know where they gets red flannel, but you can't tell them darkeys red flannel won't keep away all diseases, cold and heat," said she.

"I was down thar last July," and she chuckled. "I went to bury my husband. And his father mind you, was wearing red flannels in July—in Charleston. And he says, 'Whew it's hot.'

"And when those darkeys stopped being slaves, they stopped being 'em all right. That old man, my husband's father, would build a little paper fire in the grate in the moanins, in July, and put his shoes in front of it to warm the inside of 'em befoah he stepped into 'em. In July!" (more chuckles).

She didn't clean so well, but nobody cared.

An Omaha woman came into court and complained that her husband didn't give here enough to eat. He is an artist, and likes sylph-like women, but she wanted to eat—he locked up the pantry so she wouldn't get fat.

Judge William Gemmill, of Chicago's famous Domestic Court, says a woman came to his court and told that same story and the husband said he couldn't help it, fat women were his obcession. He would divorce here if she got fat.

It's a grand life—all of it!

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

YOU may be so good-natured that folks impose on you.

It is the easy-going man upon whom people pick as the one to be talked into doing things he should not do.

It may be easier for you to say "yes," if by saying "no" you should precipitate an argument.

Isn't it true that you have been persuaded into doing things which you regretted, because you did not want to give the time or attention to debate?

You don't like wordy battles.

For this reason you are looked upon as a man without decided opinions.

Too lazy to discuss things that make you think hard and fast, aren't you?

So you are victimized to a certain extent.

You are aware of it, and too often don't oppose it because you do not want to be disturbed.

Then you wonder why you are not taken more seriously.

You would like to be considered of good judgment.

But what evidence of this quality do you possess?

Too easy and too lazy to fight for your convictions—what are you?

Merely an easy mark for those who want to use you to their own advantage.
